DIES SUDDENLY IN AUTOMOBILE

Friend Tries to Arouse Stricken Man. Thinking that he is Merely Sleeping. Had been Warned of his Condition.

On his way home after a motor trip through East Berlin, New Oxford, and Hampton, William H. Markle, aged 56, a resident of Spring Grove, was fatally stricken in Hanover Wednesday afternoon and died almost instantly.

Mr. Markle had accompanied Frank Hoke, a cattle dealer, on his trip through Adams County and was apparently in good health, although for the past two weeks he was suffering from heart trouble and was advised by physicians to take the best of care of himself.

When they arrived at New Oxford in the afternoon Hoke invited Markle to dine with him at a restaurant, but he declined, saying that his health would not allow a late lunch. They arrived in Hanover about 3 o'clock. The first stop was that in front of the Little meat store. Mr. Hoke went into the store, transacted his business, and when he came out he surmised that Mr. Markle was sleeping. When he attempted to awaken him he discovered he was dead. Markle was in a sitting posture, as if to drive the machine, although his hands were folded on his lap.

Markle for the past two years was employed by Harry Bear, proprietor of the Spring Grove garage, as a repairman and chauffeur. Prior to this he was engaged in installing pumps and repairing.

He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Ruth, a student at the Spring Grove High School, and one son, Joseph, of Mt. Airy. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Services will be conducted in Mt. Zion-Reformed church, Spring Grove, and interment at York.

Mrs. Sponseller leaves one daughter, Mrs. John Miller, of Lebanon, and one son, Harry; also one sister, Mrs. Maria Feeser, of Midway, and three stepbrothers: Andrew and Amos Sponseller, New Oxford; and John Sponseller, Mt. Pleasant, and one step-sister, Mrs. Edward Baumgardner, of Brodbeck.

The funeral was held on Wednesday.

HELD BY MACHINE

Young Farmer's Finger Flattened by Spring in Plow.

Jack Oden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Oden, who recently moved from Waynesboro to a farm they purchased in Freedom township, was severely injured a few days ago. He was plowing with a spring plow when one of the shovels was caught and pulled back. He tried to release the spring with his finger and at the same time kicked the shovel. The shovel bounded forward and the young man's little finger on his right hand was caught by the spring and held fast.

He could not get it loose and called for help. It was 20 minutes before assistance came and then it was necessary to go to the house to get tools to take apart the plow. The little finger, when released, was flattened out and was badly cut and bruised.

REPORT BEALES BILL FAVORABLY

And New Government Building Operations are Assured. Colonel Nicholson's Expression on the Subject.

The favorable action on Congressman Beales' battlefield roads bill, forecasted in The Times last week, has come and passage of the bill is practically assured by recommendation which has been made by the committee on military affairs, to which the measure had been referred, and by Secretary of War Baker. Congressman Beales' bill provides for the expenditure of $15,000, or as much of that sum as necessary, in the battlefield improvement.

A total of 7,445 feet of road through the national park will be repaired when the bill has achieved final passage. About 3,480 feet are part of the Emmitsburg road and the remaining 3,965 feet of the Taneytown highway. In his communication to the secretary of war, conveying the sanction of the battlefield commission regarding the improvements, Colonel John P. Nicholson, commission chairman, declares:

"When the United States established this commission in 1893, the so-called avenues and the public roads over the battlefield were ordinary dirt roads, rough at all times; dusty in dry weather; deep with mud in wet weather, and in a generally bad condition nine months of the year. The commission has picked all the avenues except those on Cavalry field.

"In 1895 a bill passed by the general assembly of Pennsylvania ceded 14 miles of the public roads outside of the borough of Gettysburg, but within the limits of the national park, to the United States. A total of 10.7 miles of these public roads were accepted by the United States and the roadways have been picked by the commission. The Emmitsburg road was ceded and picked, 8,663 feet from the borough line southwesterly to the peach orchard. The state of Pennsylvania has taken up the work on this road from Confederate avenue in a southwesterly direction, leaving a gap of 3,480 feet.

"There is a similar gap of 3,965 feet in the Taneytown road, a total distance of 7,445 feet, which would come immediately under the provisions of Congressman Beales' bill. The commission respectfully recommends the passage of the measure."

The bill introduced by the congressman from the Twentieth district authorizes the secretary of war to make the improvements.

HOW TO COMBAT MANY RODENTS

Visit of Scores of Rats to County Farms Makes Bulletin of State Adviser Most Timely. Gives Good Suggestions.

From many portions of the county come reports of killings of large numbers of rats, and the pest has become almost a plague in some sections. Mrs. Jean K. Foulke, who addressed the meetings in the court house on Rural Life Day recently, contributes to this week's Press Bulletin of the Department of Agriculture, an article on how to meet this condition. Mrs. Foulke impressed her audiences here most favorably and her suggestions will be taken as carrying considerable weight. She says:

"The housewife ought to do her part and take advantage of our late spring, as the rats are still keeping to the house where they can be more readily attacked than they can later when they begin to move about. Then too, the breeding season is at hand, and at present where we have only two animals to destroy, in a short time there will be whole families of them, averaging from four to six young ones.

"There are various traps for catching rats which are more or less efficacious, but they are all more or less cruel. The best way is to poison food where they will get it, although care should be used in doing this to be sure such food is out of reach of the children and domestic animals. Barium carbonate and some of the arsenates are suitable for this purpose. Or, if a runway or hole is discovered that the rats use, a little caustic soda or potash, where it will get on their feet and fur, will help to drive them out. Even paint or tar smeared about the holes and outlets of their retreats will have this effect.

"All rubbish about sheds and in the cellar should be cleared up as much as possible. Barrels and boxes of trash should be destroyed. Barrels, boxes, tubs, etc., in the cellar, should be raised off the floor so that there is no hiding place for the rats about or under them. Holes and openings in closets and stairways, and about the subspaces or rooms should be closed with tin or zinc, or even with cement. A little well powdered glass in this last, or put down in the hole before it is covered, will have a discouraging effect on the return of the rat.

"The men of the family should also seize this time to wage war against this common enemy at the barn, for when driven from the house they will go to the granary and feed bin, to the chicken house and pig pen; and to really rid farms of these pests needs concerted effort inside and out."

BALD EAGLE NEARBY

Farmers Take Precaution to Protect their Poultry.

The arrival of a large bald eagle near Porters has aroused interest among the residents, who fear its carrying off and feasting on their poultry. The monster bird was first seen in the vicinity of Kraft's grist mill, by William G. Kraft and Albert Albright. Its appearance was first noticed about two weeks ago. Since its arrival there the eagle, four times the size of an ordinary chicken hawk, has been seen frequently about the bottom lands north of the Kraft home, as well as hovering over the valley of the Codorus creek. It is believed the bird has a nest in the hills, just a short distance from the Kraft mill, where wild game is said to exist. The eagle stands possibly as high as a good sized turkey. The lower part of its body is white, while the top and back of its wings are of a darker hue. Thus far the bird has committed no depredations.

REPORT BEALES BILL FAVORABLY

The favorable action on Congressman Beales' battlefield roads bill, forecasted in The Times last week, has come and passage of the bill is practically assured by recommendation which has been made by the committee on military affairs, to which the measure had been referred, and by Secretary of War Baker. Congressman Beales' bill provides for the expenditure of $15,000, or as much of that sum as necessary, in the battlefield improvement.

A total of 7,445 feet of road through the national park will be repaired when the bill has achieved final passage. About 3,480 feet are part of the Emmitsburg road and the remaining 3,965 feet of the Taneytown highway. In his communication to the secretary of war, conveying the sanction of the battlefield commission regarding the improvements, Colonel John P. Nicholson, commission chairman, declares:

"When the United States established this commission in 1893, the so-called avenues and the public roads over the battlefield were ordinary dirt roads, rough at all times; dusty in dry weather; deep with mud in wet weather, and in a generally bad condition nine months of the year. The commission has piked all the avenues except those on Cavalry field.

"In 1895 a bill passed by the general assembly of Pennsylvania ceded 14 miles of the public roads outside of the borough of Gettysburg, but within the limits of the national park, to the United States. A total of 10.7 miles of these public roads were accepted by the United States and the roadways have been piked by the commission. The Emmitsburg road was ceded and piked, 8,663 feet from the borough line southwesterly to the peach orchard. The state of Pennsylvania has taken up the work on this road from Confederate avenue in a southwesterly direction, leaving a gap of 3,480 feet.

"There is a similar gap of 3,965 feet in the Taneytown road, a total distance of 7,445 feet, which would come immediately under the provisions of Congressman Beales' bill. The commission respectfully recommends the passage of the measure."

The bill introduced by the congressman from the Twentieth district authorizes the secretary of war to make the improvements.

HOW TO COMBAT MANY RODENTS

From many portions of the county come reports of killings of large numbers of rats, and the pest has become almost a plague in some sections. Mrs. Jean K. Foulke, who addressed the meetings in the court house on Rural Life Day recently, contributes to this week's Press Bulletin of the Department of Agriculture, an article on how to meet this condition. Mrs. Foulke impressed her audiences here most favorably and her suggestions will be taken as carrying considerable weight. She says:

"The housewife ought to do her part and take advantage of our late spring, as the rats are still keeping to the house where they can be more readily attacked than they can later when they begin to move about. Then, too, the breeding season is at hand, and at present where we have only two animals to destroy, in a short time there will be whole families of them, averaging from four to six young ones.

"There are various traps for catching rats which are more or less efficacious, but they are all more or less cruel. The best way is to poison food where they will get it, although care should be used in doing this to be sure such food is out of reach of the children and domestic animals. Barium carbonate and some of the arsenates are suitable for this purpose. Or, if a runway or hole is discovered that the rats use, a little caustic soda or potash, where it will get on their feet and fur, will help to drive them out. Even paint or tar smeared about the holes and outlets of their retreats will have this effect.

"All rubbish about sheds and in the cellar should be cleared up as much as possible. Barrels and boxes of trash should be destroyed. Barrels, boxes, tubs, etc., in the cellar should be raised off the floor so that there is no hiding place for the rats about or under them. Holes and openings in closets and stairways, and about the surbuses or rooms should be closed with tin or zinc, or even with cement. A little well powdered glass in this last, or put down in the hole before it is covered, will have a discouraging effect on the return of the rat.

"The men of the family should also seize this time to wage war against this common enemy at the barn, for when driven from the house they will go to the granary and feed bin, to the chicken house and pig pen; and to really rid farms of these pests needs concerted effort inside and out."

BALD EAGLE NEARBY

Farmers Take Precaution to Protect their Poultry.

The arrival of a large bald eagle near Porters has aroused interest among the residents, who fear its carrying off and feasting on their poultry. The monster bird was first seen in the vicinity of Kraft's grist mill, by William G. Kraft and Albert Albright. Its appearance was first noticed about two weeks ago. Since its arrival there the eagle, four times the size of an ordinary chicken hawk, has been seen frequently about the bottom lands north of the Kraft home, as well as hovering over the valley of the Codorus creek. It is believed the bird has a nest in the hills, just a short distance from the Kraft mill, where wild game is said to exist. The eagle stands possibly as high as a good sized turkey. The lower part of its body is white, while the top and back of its wings are of a darker hue. Thus far the bird has committed no depredations.

TWO AMERICANS SLAIN IN FIGHT

U. S. Cavalry In Clash With Villa Bandits.

ROUTED IN RUNNING FIGHT

Six Mexicans Wounded After Encounter With Nineteen Americans. Three Americans Wounded.

Field Headquarters, by wireless to Columbus, N. M., April 27.—Two Americans were killed and three wounded in an engagement between cavalrymen under Colonel George A. Dodd and 260 Villa bandits at Tomachio, in the center of the Sierra Madre, in western Chihuahua, April 22 (Saturday), according to an official report which reached here.

The Villa command under four chiefs, Baca, Cervantes and Dominguez and Rios, was surprised in the late afternoon and routed. After the battle, the Americans found six dead Mexicans and nineteen wounded while a quantity of horses, arms and equipment was captured.

The reports do not mention Villa himself as being with the band, although he has been reported hiding in the mountains in that vicinity. Last reports placed him at Monaca, fifty miles south of Tomachio, which is sixty-five miles southwest of Chihuahua City.

The Villa bandits were encamped in a jagged rocky canyon when they caught sight of the American column rushing toward them. The Mexican bugles immediately sounded the call to arms. Through the mountain pass, the two commands struggled, the bandits dropping all cumbersome equipment in precipitate flight before the cavalrymen.

The Villa forces received reinforcements and tried vainly to make a stand against the Americans. When night came, the pursuit became increasingly difficult because of the nature of the terrain, honeycombed with mountain caves, gorges and trails in which there are many jagged rocks.

Colonel Dodd pursued the bandits toward Minaca, his base, where he is now reported to be awaiting supplies.

The wounded bandits, together with twenty-five horses and arms, captured, were taken to Minaca to await orders from Brigadier General Pershing as to their destination. Colonel Dodd was officially commended for the promptness shown by his small, but numbered force.

Tentative arrangements for a special car to carry General Scott and Funston to Eagle Pass have been made.

MRS. ROGERS NOT GUILTY

Woman Who Poisoned Children Acquitted on Grounds of Insanity.

New York, April 27.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Ida Sniffen Rogers, charged with the murder of her two children, brought in a verdict of not guilty, on the grounds of insanity.

Her defense was that she was temporarily insane because Lorlys Elton Rogers, the father of the children, had not divorced the woman then his wife. Rogers has since been divorced and has married the defendant.

"Humanity and motherhood are at the bar," Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, her counsel, said in summing up. "This is either a cold-blooded murder, meriting death, or the act of a woman not in her right mind. It is a question of liberty or death, and I bid for no cowardly compromise."

GERMANS SHELL VERDUN SECTORS

Heavy Bombardment West of the Meuse.

London, April 27.—French positions on the Verdun front west of the Meuse were bombarded vigorously by the Germans.

The attack was centered on Avocourt wood and the first line trenches north of Hill No. 304. In the Voivre there was a big gun bombardment.

The official French statement in which these developments are reported, says also that a number of German prisoners were taken during Tuesday's attack north of the Aisne.

On the whole Verdun sector west of the Meuse, from Cumieres to Ay, fighting was in progress all of Monday and Monday night. Le Mans (Dead Man's Hill) was again the chief prize, but the net result of the struggle left the lines of both sides practically unchanged.

The Germans attempted a diversion in Lorraine, southeast of Badonvillers. Some of the attacking troops succeeded in reaching the French trenches at La Chapelle, but here they were isolated and practically annihilated.

The Russian troops which arrived in Marseilles Tuesday held dress parade in the presence of a vast crowd, which cheered them wildly. The Russian troops, in parading through the city, were preceded by little girls who strewn flowers in their path.

$500,000 TO SINK SHIP

Witness in Bomb Plot Says Germany Is Ready to Pay That Sum.

New York, April 26.—The German government was prepared to pay $500,000 each for the destruction of ships loaded with war supplies for the entente allies. Lieutenant Robert Fay, of the German army, on trial in the United States court for conspiracy, was quoted as having informed Carl L. Wittig, a witness for the prosecution.

"I asked him," testified Wittig, a chemical engineer, "if he knew what $500,000 was and he replied that money was no object in this thing." Wittig, who declared his sympathies in the war were with France, told of informing the French embassy of his conversation with Fay. The embassy in turn notified the New York police.

On trial with Fay are his brother-in-law, Walter Scholz, and Paul Dasche. Wittig said he told Fay and Scholz that in placing bombs on ships with which they were unfamiliar they "were placing innocent people in jeopardy."

"Scholz declared," added the witness, "that they knew what they were doing; that Max Breitling was telling them on which ships ammunition was being shipped."

Breitling also is under indictment for the alleged conspiracy. Wittig's disclosures, it was said, came just in time to put the police on the track at the moment a supply of tri nitro toluol, one of the most powerful of high explosives, had been delivered to the headquarters of the alleged plotters in Hoboken.

TROOPS QUELL DUBLIN RIOTS

Martial Law Proclaimed in Irish Capital and County.

STRONGHOLDS ARE RETAKEN

Sinn Feiners Driven From Stephens Green and Postoffice. Nineteen Killed and Twenty-seven Hurt in Rioting.

London, April 27.—Drastic steps have been taken by the British government to suppress the uprising in Dublin.

Martial law has been proclaimed in Dublin and Dublin county and large numbers of troops and machine guns have been despatched to the scene of the rioting, as well as to the entire southern section of Ireland. The British government proclaimed the associations which took part in the movement, illegal associations, which will enable the police and troops to break them up.

This was announced by Premier Asquith in the house of commons, who also said that while making a more reassuring statement with regard to the situation in the Irish capital, did not add much to previous knowledge of what has happened there since Monday afternoon, when the rebels took possession of the postoffice and certain sections of the city.

The prime minister was able to say, however, that Liberty hall, the headquarters of the Sinn Fein party, and St. Stephen's Green, which seemed to have been the center of the rising, had been recaptured by the military, who were being reinforced by troops from England and Belfast.

Nationalist volunteers, Mr. Asquith said, had turned out to assist the authorities, while many local persons had offered their aid. Steps to arrest all of those concerned in the movement were being taken.

Outside of Dublin, he said, the country was tranquil. The premier added that steps were being taken to acquaint neutral countries of the real significance of "this most recent German campaign."

Uneasiness for the safety of Baron Wimborne, lord lieutenant for Ireland, who unofficially was reported to have been taken prisoner by the rioters, it was held, as a hostage until Sir Roger Casement was released, was set at rest when the following telegram was received here from him:

"The situation is satisfactory. St. Stephen's Green has been occupied. Eleven insurgents have been killed. The provincial news is reassuring."

In a statement in the house of lords, Lord Lansdowne, a member of the cabinet, gave new details of the rising in Dublin on Monday.

Lord Lansdowne said that the rioters had made a half-hearted attack on Dublin castle. There was now a complete cordon of troops around the center of Dublin, he added.

The casualties at Dublin, according to Lord Lansdowne, were fifteen killed and twenty-one wounded, besides two loyal volunteers and two police men killed and six loyal volunteers wounded.

In speaking of the capture of Sir Roger Casement, leader of the Separatists, Lord Lansdowne said:

"Three days ago a German submarine and a vessel disguised as a Dutch trader appeared on the west coast of Ireland. The submarine landed in a collapsible boat three individuals. Two of them were made prisoners, one of whom was Sir Roger Casement. The German ship was taken in tow by a British vessel, but was blown up by its crew."

Sir Roger Casement, leader of the Separatist faction in Ireland, who was captured while attempting to land arms from Germany, on the Irish coast, was conveyed across Ireland Saturday by a strong armed escort, who knew the prisoner only by two initials. He arrived in London without incident and immediately was lodged in the Metropolitan prison.

SAY 10,000 ARE IN REVOLT

Dublin Uprising Minimized by British. Irish-Americans Say.

New York, April 27.—The revolt in Ireland far exceeds in extent the admissions of the British government, according to information reported to have been received in Irish circles in this city.

A force of 10,000 is opposing the British government authorities in Dublin and neighboring Irish counties, it was asserted.

The reports had it that John MacNeill, leader of the Irish volunteers, and editor of their official organ, the Irish Volunteer, had been shot, but whether in the fighting or after arrest had not been learned.

STAND BY MINERS' CONFEREES' ACTION

General Committee Endorses Refusal.

New York, April 27.—The general committee representing the miners of the three anthracite districts of Pennsylvania endorsed the report of their sub-committee which refused to accept the offers of the sub-committee of operators in respect to the miners' demands. These included only partial concessions and refusal of the miners' demands for recognition of the United Mine Workers of America and the employment of the so-called "check-off" system.

John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers, said the committee would remain firm on the strike taken by the sub-committee, which will be reported to a joint general conference of miners and operators.

Unless this conference is able to find a way to break the deadlock it will be left to the miners' convention at Pottsville, Pa., May 2, to determine whether the miners shall declare a strike. Representatives of the miners expressed faint hope that further negotiations would be productive of results and said that not one of the eleven demands made by the miners had been granted by the operators.

The deadlock is attributed by the operators to the miners' demand to full recognition of the union, a closed shop and the compulsory collection by the operators of all dues and assessments of the United Mine Workers laid upon their members. The operators refused this demand, known as the "check-off" on the ground that it is un-American and against the practice of every other labor organization in the country.

New York, April 27.—Eluding her nurse, Mrs. Theresa Kaufman, of Pittsburgh, a neurasthenic patient, here for treatment of specialists, jumped from the window of her apartment on the seventh floor of the Ritz Carlton hotel and was killed as she struck the asphalt on Forty-sixth street.

Mrs. Kaufman was forty years old. Her husband is Henry Kaufman, until recently the head of the Pittsburgh Department Store, Pittsburgh.

While the nurse's attention was for a moment distracted, Mrs. Kaufman jumped from her bed, rushed to the window, raised it and without a word leaped out.

Scott, chief of staff of the army, and General Alvaro Obregon, Carranza's minister of war, would be held at Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, or Las Vacas, across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, Texas. Tentative arrangements for a special car to carry General Scott and Funston to Eagle Pass have been made.

MRS. ROGERS NOT GUILTY

Woman Who Poisoned Children Acquitted on Grounds of Insanity.

New York, April 27.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Ida Sniffen Rogers, charged with the murder of her two children, brought in a verdict of not guilty, on the grounds of insanity.

Her defense was that she was temporarily insane because Lorly Elton Rogers, the father of the children, had not divorced the woman then his wife. Rogers has since been divorced and has married the defendant.

"Humanity and motherhood are at the bar," Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, her counsel, said in summing up. "This is either a cold-blooded murder, meriting death, or the act of a woman not in her right mind. It is a question of liberty or death, and I bid for no cowardly compromise."

GERMANS SHELL VERDUN SECTORS

Heavy Bombardment West of the Meuse.

London, April 27.—French positions on the Verdun front west of the Meuse were bombarded vigorously by the Germans.

The attack was centered on Avocourt wood and the first line trenches north of Hill No. 304. In the Woivre there was a big gun bombardment.

The official French statement in which these developments are reported, says also that a number of German prisoners were taken during Tuesday's attack north of the Aisne.

On the whole Verdun sector west of the Meuse, from Cumieres to Avocourt, fighting was in progress all of Monday and Monday night. Le Maréchal (Dead Man's Hill) was again the chief prize, but the net result of the struggle left the lines of both sides practically unchanged.

The Germans attempted a diversion in Lorraine, southeast of Badonvillers. Some of the attacking troops succeeded in reaching the French trenches at La Chapelle, but here they were isolated and practically annihilated.

The Russian troops which arrived in Marseilles Tuesday held dress parade in the presence of a vast crowd, which cheered them wildly. The Russian troops, in parading through the city, were preceded by little girls who strewn flowers in their path.

Witness in Bomb Plot Says Germany Is Ready to Pay That Sum.

New York, April 26.—The German government was prepared to pay $500,000 each for the destruction of ships loaded with war supplies for the entente allies, Lieutenant Robert Fay, of the German army, on trial in the United States court for conspiracy, was quoted as having informed Carl L. Wittig, a witness for the prosecution.

"I asked him," testified Wittig, a chemical engineer, "if he knew what $500,000 was and he replied that money was no object in this thing."

Wittig, who declared his sympathies in the war were with France, told of informing the French embassy of his conversation with Fay. The embassy in turn notified the New York police.

On trial with Fay are his brother-in-law, Walter Scholz, and Paul Dasche Wittig said he told Fay and Scholz that in placing bombs on ships with which they were unfamiliar they "were placing innocent people in jeopardy."

"Scholz declared," added the witness, "that they knew what they were doing; that Max Breitling was telling them on which ships ammunition was being shipped."

Breitling also is under indictment for the alleged conspiracy. Wittig's disclosures, it was said, came just in time to put the police on the track at the moment a supply of tri nitro toluol, one of the most powerful of high explosives, had been delivered to the headquarters of the alleged plotters in Hoboken.

TROOPS QUELL DUBLIN RIOTS

Martial Law Proclaimed in Irish Capital and County.

STRONGHOLDS ARE RETAKEN

London, April 27.—Drastic steps have been taken by the British government to suppress the uprising in Dublin.

Martial law has been proclaimed in Dublin and Dublin county and large numbers of troops and machine guns have been despatched to the scene of the rioting, as well as to the entire southern section of Ireland. The British government proclaimed the associations which took part in the movement, illegal associations, which will enable the police and troops to break them up.

This was announced by Premier Asquith in the house of commons, who also said that while making a more reassuring statement with regard to the situation in the Irish capital, he did not add much to previous knowledge of what has happened there since Monday afternoon, when the rebels took possession of the postoffice and certain sections of the city.

The prime minister was able to say, however, that Liberty hall, the headquarters of the Sinn Fein party, and St. Stephen's Green, which seemed to have been the center of the rising, had been recaptured by the military, who were being reinforced by troops from England and Belfast.

Nationalist volunteers, Mr. Asquith said, had turned out to assist the authorities, while many local persons had offered their aid. Steps to arrest all of those concerned in the movement were being taken.

Outside of Dublin, he said, the country was tranquil. The premier added that steps were being taken to acquaint neutral countries of the real significance of "this most recent German campaign."

Uneasiness for the safety of Baron Wimborne, lord lieutenant for Ireland, who unofficially was reported to have been taken prisoner by the rioters, he held as a hostage until Sir Roger Casement was released, was set at rest when the following telegram was received here from him:

"The situation is satisfactory. Stephen's Green has been occupied. Eleven insurgents have been killed. The provincial news is reassuring."

In a statement in the house of lords, Lord Lansdowne, a member of the cabinet, gave new details of the rising in Dublin on Monday.

Lord Lansdowne said that the rioters had made a half-hearted attack on Dublin castle. There was now a complete cordon of troops around the center of Dublin, he added.

The casualties at Dublin, according to Lord Lansdowne, were fifteen killed and twenty-one wounded, besides two loyal volunteers and two policemen killed and six loyal volunteers wounded.

In speaking of the capture of Sir Roger Casement, leader of the Separatists, Lord Lansdowne said:

"Three days ago a German submarine and a vessel disguised as a Dutch trader appeared on the west coast of Ireland. The submarine landed in a collapsible boat three individuals. Two of them were made prisoners, one of whom was Sir Roger Casement. The German ship was taken in tow by a British vessel, but was blown up by its crew."

Sir Roger Casement, leader of the Separatist faction in Ireland, who was captured while attempting to land arms from Germany, on the Irish coast was conveyed across Ireland Saturday by a strong armed escort, who knew the prisoner only by two initials. He arrived in London without incident and immediately was lodged in the Metropolitan prison.

Dublin Uprising Minimized by British, Irish-Americans Say.

New York, April 27.—The revolt in Ireland far exceeds in extent the admissions of the British government, according to information reported to have been received in Irish circles in this city.

A force of 10,000 is opposing the British government authorities in Dublin and neighboring Irish counties, it was asserted.

The reports had it that John MacNeill, leader of the Irish volunteers, and editor of their official organ, the Irish Volunteer, had been shot, but whether in the fighting or after arrest had not been learned.

STAND BY MINERS' CONFEREES' ACTION

General Committee Endorses Refusal.

New York, April 27.—The general committee representing the miners of the three anthracite districts of Pennsylvania endorsed the report of their sub-committee which refused to accept the offers of the sub-committee of operators in respect to the miners' demands. These included only partial concessions and refusal of the miners' demands for recognition of the United Mine Workers of America and the employment of the so-called "check-off" system.

John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers, said the committee would remain firm on the stance taken by the sub-committee, which will be reported to a joint general conference of miners and operators.

Unless this conference is able to find a way to break the deadlock it will be left to the miners' convention at Pottsville, Pa., May 2, to determine whether the miners shall declare a strike. Representatives of the miners expressed faint hope that further negotiations would be productive of results and said that not one of the eleven demands made by the miners had been granted by the operators.

The deadlock is attributed by the operators to the miners' demand for full recognition of the union, a closed shop and the compulsory collection by the operators of all dues and assessments of the United Mine Workers laid upon their members. The operators refused this demand, known as the "check-off" on the ground that it is un-American and against the practice of every other labor organization in the country.

Mrs. Kaufman was forty years old. Her husband is Henry Kaufman, until recently the head of the Pittsburgh Department Store, Pittsburgh.

REVENGE GIVEN AS WAR EXCUSE

"They Must Stop Killing Our People," Plead Advocates.

TALK OF BRITAIN'S ACT ON.

Breaking of Relations With Germany Would Give England a Stronger Hold on Commerce of the World—Boys Between Eighteen and Twenty-three Would Be Brunt of Fighting.

By ARTHUR W. DUN

When the killing of our people seems to be the basic idea in regard to the crisis between the United States and Germany. Any of that remarks about the way that Great Britain and the other allies have interfered, and our commerce is generally taken to scorn and accused as interfering above life.

To carry out the idea that we must have a life for a life and punish Germany as a result of the sinking of various vessels upon which Americans were traveling might cost a hundred lives for each of those already gone in taking revenge on a country for the loss of life or national honor little account seems to be taken of the soldiers and sailors who are sacrificed. They are considered heroes and that is all the reward they get.

Way down deep in the minds of a great many men and some of them who are now supporting a vigorous foreign policy there may be a feeling that all Americans ought to try to avoid foreign complications as much as possible and confine their travel to neutral instead of belligerent ships.

English Control Commerce.

The breaking of relations with Germany will have the effect of increasing the grip of Great Britain upon the shipping of the world, as that country has constantly advanced her claims and gone further than any one ever dreamed of in the matter of interference with neutral shipping of the goods of neutral nations. Or at least so her enemies say.

The Boys Must Fight.

In case we have a war it is just as well to understand that it will be the boys of the country who must do the fighting. During the civil war there were 2,150,178 soldiers under twenty-one years of age. Of these 1,151,434 were under eighteen years of age. There were, above the age of twenty-two years only 615,711 soldiers. If we have a war of any extent whatever it will be the boys between the ages of fifteen and twenty-three who will be sacrificed.

Anderson Makes a Discovery.

During discussion of the agricultural appropriation bill in the house Sidney Anderson of Minnesota took a shot at J. Hampton Moore, who had been dipping into the discussion to some extent, saying:

"I never have been able to understand the interest of the farmer from Philadelphia. Mr. Moore, in the river and harbor bill with new. He is interested in navigation. He wants to get enough water in the Delaware river to irrigate some of the window boxes in which his constituents plant the garden seeds that are furnished by the government."

Admonished by Gallinger.

Sen. Gallinger of New Hampshire took occasion to tell the senate a few facts the other day. He first asked if there was any information as to whether the proposed program of the ident was to be put through, but Democratic senator seemed to be doing to say that a general program had been agreed upon.

Gallinger, as a line of admonition, that if the program was to be put through under whip and spur, as suggested, it was probable that the senate would give careful consideration to every measure, that comes before the senate. This was practically a notice to the Democrats that a part of the program should be abandoned if they wanted to come with any kind of tower in the session.

Happens Every Year.

At the close of the session of the House in Washington to the government business for this year that the House generally breaks out on an appropriation bill, but this year the good results of the session furnished a vehicle for the discussion. The same statements were made, which are to the effect that some Senators or Congressmen are paid on every year by the state that the government can't save money by putting up its own buildings and constantly enlarged, because created and heads of departments could build large also that the same thing happens year after year.

Kern Goes on Record.

"Woodrow Wilson," declared Senator Kern, "is the greatest president since Jefferson." While there can be no doubt about the liberality of the Indiana senator, he eliminates such men as Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Lincoln and Cleveland. But then, in his close view of Wilson, and those others are quite far in the distance.

He Understood Her.

She—"I want you to forget that I told you I didn't mean what I said about not taking back my refusal to change my mind. I've been thinking it over and I've decided that I was mistaken in the first place." "Do you really mean that, Isabel?"—Life.

DANCING AND LATE HOURS HELP MAKE GOOD SOLDIERS

Physical Director Tells Why City Men Are Best For Service Duty.

He who would prepare to act as a sentry in case of peace tangoing until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. This will make him accustomed to staying awake until late, and he won't mind the lonely vigils of a night watch.

This may be gleaned from a statement made by Dr. Louis Weizmiller, physical director of a New York Y. M. C. A., who added that the city chap has the advantage over the country man in his fitness for war. Dr. Weizmiller is now rounding a class of local men into shape to stand such hardships as Plattsburg will impose.

"City and country men ought to be prepared to be prepared for war," said Dr. Weizmiller. "But they are not fit to prepare for war because they are not ready to undergo the preparation. What they should do is to get in such physical shape that they can stand the military preparation."

Both classes are creatures of habit, he added, and although the country rookie is physically harder than the city rookie when they first get to camp, a few days will offset that. The interruption in habits of the country rookie will break him all up, too, said Dr. Weizmiller.

"The country chap finds it almost impossible to go on night sentry duty," said he. "He is used to going to bed with the chickens, and the loneliness of a night post is too much for him. The city fellow who goes to tango parties and after theater suppers and gets home several nights a week long after midnight doesn't mind sentry duty at all. His only regret when assigned to it is that he has no partner with whom to dance through it."

STEAM AUTO FOR RAILWAYS.

New Car to Carry Forty-four Persons and Make Mile a Minute.

A steam automobile railway car, using kerosene as fuel, capable of making a mile a minute and carrying forty-four passengers, is being built by the Unit Railway Car company in Newton, Mass. The members of this concern consist of F. E. and F. O. Stanley, who manufacture a steam automobile that bears their name. For a long time the Stanleys have been working upon a plan of adapting the steam automobile engine to railroad and street railway purposes. They have now reached a point where the first car, which may be described as the steam automobile enlarged and applied to rail conditions, will be on the rails in the course of a month or two.

F. E. Stanley estimates that with the present cost of kerosene the operation of the car will be about a cent a mile. It has a baggage compartment and a compartment for the engineer, weighs about 15,000 pounds and will cost about $10,000. The body is of steel and is equipped with airbrakes, electric lighting system and standard equipment. Designs have been made for a smaller car to carry twenty-six passengers and adapted more for service similar to that of trolley cars.

WOMEN'S PART IN POLITICS.

Surveys Prevails in States Which Have Ninety-one Electoral Votes.

When the Republican and Democratic parties meet in convention next June they will find that equal suffrage has a very different status from what it had in former conventions. At the time of the presidential election of 1912 the states in which women voted controlled thirty-seven electoral votes. At the next presidential election the states where women vote will control ninety-one electoral votes—more than New York and New Jersey combined.

Since 1912 six states, Arizona, Kansas, Oregon, Illinois, Montana and Nevada, have given women the right to vote. If Iowa, where the question of woman's enfranchisement comes before the voters on June 5, joins the equal suffrage commonwealths there will be more electoral votes will be added to the ninety-one of the enfranchised states.

WAR TEACHES MEN LESSON OF THRIFT

Insurance Man Sees One Blessing in European Struggle.

MILLIONS GOING TO WASTE

Those Who Conserve Their Own Resources Must Aid the Helpless, He Asserts—Points Out Vast Riches of the United States and the Number of Dependents.

The present war will be a benefit to the entire world in that it will increase the total efficiency and saving power of the people in the various nations, both those at war and those on this continent, according to a recent statement made by Edward A. Woods, president of the National Life Underwriters' association.

Mr. Woods declared that the United States, with national wealth three times that of France and nearly double that of either Great Britain or Germany, was a shame to the world in the prodigality with which it wasted its substance. Lack of thrift, he asserted, was a menace to the continued prosperity of the country just as surely as the same characteristics displayed in Rome destroyed her world empire.

"We have a wealth of $150,000,000,000 as compared with $85,000,000,000 for England and $80,000,000,000 for Germany," said Mr. Woods. "Moreover, our income of $35,000,000,000 a year is larger in proportion to this wealth than that of any other nation. Not only have we therefore the greatest amount of wealth and the greatest income, but the greatest proportionate income, 23 1/3 per cent, comparing with 14 per cent of Great Britain, 12 1/2 per cent of Germany and 12 per cent of France. We are increasing our wealth $20,000,000 a day, or $7,000,000,000 a year, our annual increase equalling the entire combined wealth of Holland and Portugal."

Too Many Dependents Here.

"And yet in this great, wealthy country Robert Hunter says that there are 10,000,000 and probably 15,000,000 in poverty. One-third of the population of New York apply for charity in seven years. One person in ten who dies in our large cities is buried in a pauper's grave. There are 1,250,000 dependent wage earners costing this country $220,000,000 a year for their support who should have laid by enough to support themselves."

"There are 1,990,225 children, ten to fifteen years of age, making a living who ought to be in school. We are supporting about 1,000,000 dependents and delinquents in institutions. There are 18,000,000 wage earners in this country."

"Out of a commerce of the astounding total of nearly $500,000,000,000 we are probably losing $900,000,000 a year by bad credit and paying $3,000,000,000 in interest, this total alone nearly equalling the wealth of thrifty Switzerland."

"What is true of America as a nation is true of many Americans as individuals. We have large incomes, we have great wealth, but we are forgetting that thrift and progress mean the saving of money, and that saving is largely regardless of wealth. It is by no means those of large incomes who comprise the thrifty, frugal, saving portion of our population. It is often the large numbers of persons of moderate means who by their saving and the character building resulting from the saving compose the real bone and sinew of a nation. Why is it that, with all our income, America should rank fifteenth in the proportion of our population carrying savings bank accounts?"

"The so-called 'American plan' hotel is an illustration of American thriftlessness and waste. We are probably wasting from American tables today enough to feed the entire population of Belgium. It is the thrifty of the country who support its institutions, who give its benefactions, who are supporting not only their own families, but the hospitals, the churches, the colleges or the institutions of the state, who are paying its taxes, who are the citizens upon whom the state, society and the church must rely."

"It is a curious fact that such a destructive process as war is sometimes a benefit to nations. The entire world at the beginning of the present struggle in Europe started to save money. You see we increase the total efficiency and it increases the total saving. 'Let America be not too free to cast criticism upon our foreign warring sister nations. It may be that the increased thrift and the increased efficiency and the increased strength of character brought about by this great crisis so affecting the nations of Europe will do for them as they did for us in our civil war—produce character and produce men and women in the years following the war may offset the enormous waste and destruction brought about by it."

"Also there are millions of saving Americans. We are not all thriftless. Of the 20,255,555 homes occupied in the United States 9,083,711 are owned, 45.8 per cent of the total, and of these 5,981,284 are unencumbered. There are more Pennsylvanians who own their own homes than citizens of any other state in the Union, New York ranking second, and there are more unencumbered homes in Pennsylvania than in any other state in the Union, Ohio ranking second, Illinois third and New York fourth."

Testimony and Argument.

Testimony is like an arrow shot from a long bow; its force depends on the length of the bow and that draws it. But argument is like an arrow from a cross-bow, which has equal force if drawn by a child or a man.—Boyle.

D. W. Griffith's mighty spectacle "The Birth of a Nation" begins its engagement at Walter's Theatre Monday night.

Nothing like this wonderful attraction has ever been shown upon the local boards. It is given here exactly as it is being presented in New York City where the big drama has broken every record in the stage history of the first city in the country. In addition the piece has piled up record engagements in Chicago, Boston, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

It covers a wide range of American history and touches only the highest points of interest in the great events that led up to and terminated the Civil War. The force that slavery played in producing this crisis is traced from its inception to its abolition. While the basic theme is historical in its foundation its intent is the fundamental one of true drama. The forces which make for these results have been marshalled upon a large scale than was ever dreamed of before.

Where directors of vast spectacles have dealt with hundreds in the past Griffith employs thousands. 18,000 people fill his stage which has a vast territory for its background. 3,000 horses pass before your view in wild dashes over miles of country roadway. The decisive battles of the Civil War are reproduced in faithful detail and you see these conflicts fought again just as they were waged 50 years ago. Cities were built up only to be destroyed to lend force and verity to the dramatic narrative. One enormous battlefield is shown stretching over an area of 10 square miles and upon these plains and trenches 10,000 soldiers clash in a mimic warfare that is as real as if you were an eyewitness of the actual occurrence. Holding the great effects in tether is a story as tender and true as love and romance can be pictured. There are tears and smiles, noble sacrifices and heroic deeds of personal valor. Youthful dreams of love's fruition are rent asunder by the demons of war; home ties snap before the call to arms and suffering such as cannot be imagined is depicted in the crude manner that history is made when men surrender reason to passion and engage in a deadlock of armed resistance—advertisement.

Why engine trouble

Frankly, there may be seventeen factors contributing at one time or another to "engine trouble." But it's always a safe bet that the greatest offender in the whole militaristic mob is Poor Lubrication. There's one sure way to banish lubrication troubles: Atlantic Motor Oils.

Here are oils that have been done as much toward banishing engine trouble via better lubrication as Atlantic Gasoline, the accepted standard, has toward increasing power, mileage and general car-happiness.

In actual tests, it has been definitely demonstrated that a properly lubricated motor will yield as much as five additional miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Use the combination: Atlantic Gasoline for fuel, Atlantic Motor Oils for lubrication.

The oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world recommend this combination to you without reservation. They ought to know whereof they speak—and they DO.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

"They Must Stop Killing Our People," Plead Advocates.

TALK OF BRITAIN'S ACTION.

Breaking of Relations With Germany Would Give England a Stronger Hold on Commerce of the World—Boys Between Eighteen and Twenty-three Would Be Brunt of Fighting.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN

Washington, April 27.—The school of "They must stop killing our people" seems to be the basic idea in regard to the crisis between the United States and Germany. Any one that remarks about the way that Great Britain and the other allies have interfered with our commerce is generally laughed at and scorned and accused of holding a narrow, above life.

To carry out the idea that we must have a life for a life and punish Germany as a result of the sinking of various vessels upon which Americans were traveling might cost a hundred lives for each of those already gone in taking revenge on a country for the loss of life or national honor little account seems to be taken of the soldiers and sailors who are sacrificed. They are considered heroes, and that is all the reward they get.

Way down deep in the minds of a great many men and some of them who are now supporting a vigorous foreign policy there may be a feeling that all Americans ought to try to avoid foreign complications as much as possible and confine their travel to neutral instead of belligerent ships.

English Control Commerce.

The breaking of relations with Germany will have the effect of increasing the grip of Great Britain upon the shipping of the world, as that country has constantly advanced her claims and gone further than any one ever dreamed of in the matter of interference with neutral shipping. Or at least so her enemies say.

The Boys Must Fight.

In case we have a war it is just as well to understand that it will be the boys of the country who must do the fighting. During the civil war there were 2,150,178 soldiers under twenty-one years of age. Of these 1,151,434 were under eighteen years of age. There were above the age of twenty-two years only 618,511 soldiers. If we have a war of any extent whatever it will be the boys between the ages of fifteen and twenty-three who will be sacrificed.

Anderson Makes a Discovery.

During discussion of the agricultural appropriation bill in the house Sidney Anderson of Minnesota took a shot at J. Hampton Moore, who had been dipping into the discussion to some extent, saying:

"I never have been able to understand the interest of the farmer from Philadelphia. Mr. Moore, in the river and harbor bill until now. He is not interested in navigation. He is interested in irrigation. He wants to get enough water in the Delaware river to irrigate some of the window boxes in which his constituents plant the garden seeds that are furnished by the government."

Admonished by Gallinger.

Sense of Gallinger of New Hampshire took occasion to tell the senate a few facts the other day. He first asked if there was any information as to whether the proposed program of the Democratic senator seemed to be going to be put through, but he was told that a general program was agreed upon.

Gallinger, as a line of admonition, said that if the program was to be put through under whip and spur, as suggested, it was probable that the senate would give careful consideration to every measure that comes before the senate. This was practically a notice to the Democrats that a part of the Democratic program should be abandoned if they wanted to move with any speed toward ending the session.

Happens Every Year.

General discussion of the renting of buildings in Washington to the government business began a few days earlier this year than in previous years. It generally breaks out on an appropriation bill, but this year the good roads measure furnished a vehicle for the discussion. The same statements were made, which are to the effect that some $600,000 or $800,000 is paid out every year for rentals that the government could save money by putting up its own buildings and occupying them; that departments were constantly enlarged, bureaus created, and heads of departments re-elected; also that the same thing happens year after year.

Kern Goes on Record.

"Woodrow Wilson," declared Senator Kern, "is the greatest president since Jefferson." While there can be no doubt about the sincerity of the Indiana senator, he eliminates such men as Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Lincoln and Cleveland. But, then, he has a close view of Wilson, and those others are quite far in the distance.

He Understood Her.

She—"I want you to forget that I told you I didn't mean what I said about not taking back my refusal to change my mind. I've been thinking it over and I've decided that I was mistaken in the first place." "Do you really mean that, Isabel?"—Life.

DANCING AND LATE HOURS HELP MAKE GOOD SOLDIERS

Physical Director Tells Why City Men Are Best For Sentry Duty.

He who would prepare to act as a sentry in case of war should spend these nights of peace tangoing until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. This will make him accustomed to staying awake until late, and he won't mind the lonely vigils of a night watch.

This may be gleaned from a statement made by Dr. Louis Weizsäcker, physical director of a New York Y. M. C. A., who added that the city chap has the advantage over the country man in his fitness for war. Dr. Weizsäcker is now rounding a class of business men into shape to stand such hardships as Plattburg will impose.

"City and country men ought to be prepared to be prepared for war," said Dr. Weizsäcker. "But they are not fit to prepare for war because they are not ready to undergo the preparation. What they should do is to get in such physical shape that they can stand the military preparation."

Both classes are creatures of habit, he added, and although the country rookie is physically harder than the city rookie when they first get to camp, a few days will offset that. The interruption in habits of the country rookie will break him all up, too, said Dr. Weizsäcker.

"The country chap finds it almost impossible to go on night sentry duty," said he. "He is used to going to bed with the chickens, and the loneliness of a night post is too much for him. The city fellow who goes to tango parties and after theater suppers and gets home several nights a week long after midnight doesn't mind sentry duty at all. His only regret when assigned to it is that he has no partner with whom to dance through it."

STEAM AUTO FOR RAILWAYS.

New Car to Carry Forty-four Persons and Make Mile a Minute.

A steam automobile railway car, using kerosene as fuel, capable of making a mile a minute and carrying forty-four passengers, is being built by the Unit Railway Car company in Newton, Mass. The members of this concern consist of F. E. and P. O. Stanley, who manufacture a steam automobile that bears their name. For a long time the Stanleys have been working upon a plan of adapting the steam automobile engine to railroad and street railway purposes. They have now reached a point where the first car, which may be described as the steam automobile enlarged and applied to rail conditions, will be on the rails in the course of a month or two.

F. E. Stanley estimates that with the present cost of kerosene the operation of the car will be about a cent a mile. It has a baggage compartment and a compartment for the engineer, weighs about 35,000 pounds and will cost about $10,000. The body is of steel and is equipped with airbrakes, electric lighting system and standard equipment. Designs have been made for a smaller car to carry twenty-six passengers and adapted more for service similar to that of trolley cars.

WOMEN'S PART IN POLITICS.

Suffrage Prevails In States Which Have Ninety-one Electoral Votes.

When the Republican and Democratic parties meet in convention next June they will find that equal suffrage has a very different status from what it had in former conventions. At the time of the presidential election of 1912 the states in which women voted controlled thirty-seven electoral votes. At the next presidential election the states where women vote will control ninety-one electoral votes—more than New York and New Jersey combined.

Since 1912 six states—Arizona, Kansas, Oregon, Illinois, Montana and Nevada—have given women the right to vote. If Iowa, where the question of woman's enfranchisement comes before the voters on June 5, joins the equal suffrage commonwealths thirteen more electoral votes will be added to the ninety-one of the enfranchised states.

MILLIONS GOING TO WASTE

Those Who Conserve Their Own Resources Must Aid the Helpless, He Asserts—Points Out Vast Riches of the United States and the Number of Dependents.

The present war will be a benefit to the entire world in that it will increase the total efficiency and saving power of the people in the various nations, both those at war and those on this continent, according to a recent statement made by Edward A. Woods, president of the National Life Underwriters' association.

Mr. Woods declared that the United States, with national wealth three times that of France and nearly double that of either Great Britain or Germany, was a shame to the world in the prodigality with which it wasted its substance. Lack of thrift, he asserted, was a menace to the continued prosperity of the country just as surely as the same characteristics displayed in Rome destroyed her world empire.

"We have a wealth of $150,000,000,000 as compared with $85,000,000,000 for England and $80,000,000,000 for Germany," said Mr. Woods. "Moreover, our income of $35,000,000,000 a year is larger in proportion to this wealth than that of any other nation. Not only have we therefore the greatest amount of wealth and the greatest income, but the greatest proportionate income, 23 1/3 per cent, comparing with 14 per cent of Great Britain, 12 1/2 per cent of Germany and 12 per cent of France. We are increasing our wealth $20,000,000 a day, or $7,000,000,000 a year, our annual increase equaling the entire combined wealth of Holland and Portugal."

Too Many Dependents Here.

"And yet in this great, wealthy country Robert Hunter says that there are 10,000,000 and probably 15,000,000 in poverty. One-third of the population of New York apply for charity in seven years. One person in ten who dies in our large cities is buried in a pauper's grave. There are 1,250,000 dependent wage earners costing this country $220,000,000 a year for their support who should have laid by enough to support themselves."

There are 1,900,225 children, ten to fifteen years of age, making a living who ought to be in school. We are supporting about 1,000,000 dependents and delinquents in institutions. There are 18,000,000 wage earners in this country. "Out of a commerce of the astounding total of nearly $500,000,000,000 we are probably losing $800,000,000 a year by bad credit and paying $3,000,000,000 in interest, this alone nearly equaling the wealth of thrifty Switzerland."

"What is true of America as a nation is true of many Americans as individuals. We have large incomes, we have great wealth, but we are forgetting that thrift and progress mean the saving of money, and that saving is largely regardless of wealth. It is by no means those of large incomes who comprise the thrifty, frugal, saving portion of our population. It is often the large numbers of persons of moderate means who by their saving and the character building resulting from the saving compose the real bone and sinew of a nation. Why is it that, with all our income, America should rank fifteenth in the proportion of our population carrying savings bank accounts?"

"The so-called 'American plan' hotel is an illustration of American thriftlessness and waste. We are probably wasting from American tables today enough to feed the entire population of Belgium. It is the thrifty of the country who support its institutions, who give its beneficiaries, who are supporting not only their own families, but the hospitals, the churches, the colleges or the institutions of the state, who are paying its taxes, who are the citizens upon whom the state, society and the church must rely."

"It is a curious fact that such a destructive process as war is sometimes a benefit to nations. The entire world at the beginning of the present struggle in Europe started to save money. You see war increases the total efficiency and it increases the total saving. Let America be not too free to cast criticism upon our foreign warring sister nations. It may be that the increased thrift and the increased efficiency and the increased strength of character brought about by this great crisis so affecting the nations of Europe will do for them as they did for us in our civil war—produce character and produce men and women that in the years following the war may offset the enormous waste and destruction brought about by it."

"Also there are millions of saving Americans. We are not all thriftless. Of the 20,255,555 homes occupied in the United States 9,083,711 are owned, 45.8 per cent of the total, and of these 5,984,284 are unencumbered. There are more Pennsylvanians who own their own homes than citizens of any other state in the Union, New York ranking second, and there are more unencumbered homes in Pennsylvania than in any other state in the Union, Ohio ranking second, Illinois third and New York fourth."

Testimony and Argument.

Testimony is like an arrow shot from a longbow; its force depends on the length of the hand that draws it. But argument is like an arrow from a cross-bow, which has equal force if drawn by a child or a man.—Boyle.

D. W. Griffith's mighty spectacle "The Birth of a Nation" begins its engagement at Walter's Theatre Monday night.

Nothing like this wonderful attraction has even been seen upon the local boards. It is given here exactly as it is being presented in New York City where the big drama has broken every record in the stage history of the first city in the country. In addition the piece has piled up record engagements in Chicago, Boston, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

It covers a wide range of American history and touches only the highest points of interest in the great events that led up to and terminated the Civil War. The force that slavery played in producing this crisis is traced from its inception to its abolition. While the basic theme is historical in its foundation its intent is the fundamental one of true drama. The forces which make for these results have been marshalled upon a large scale than was ever dreamed of before.

Where directors of vast spectacles have dealt with hundreds in the past Griffith employs thousands. 18,000 people fill his stage which has a vast territory for its background. 3,000 horses pass before your view in wild dashes over miles of country roadway. Why engine trouble

Frankly, there may be seventeen factors contributing at one time or another to "engine trouble." But it's always a safe bet that the greatest offender in the whole militaristic mob is Poor Lubrication. There's one sure way to banish lubrication-troubles: Atlantic Motor Oils.

Here are oils that have done as much toward banishing engine-trouble via better lubrication as Atlantic Gasoline, the accepted standard, has toward increasing power, mileage and general car-happiness.

Atlantic Polarine is commander of the crew of four principal motor oils, being the correct lubricant for eight out of ten cars. In all alternative cases, Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium," or Atlantic "Heavy" is the one to use. Ask your garage-man which.

In actual tests, it has been definitely demonstrated that a properly lubricated motor will yield as much as five additional miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Use the combination: Atlantic Gasoline for fuel, Atlantic Motor Oils for lubrication.

The oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world recommend this combination to you without reservation. They ought to know whereof they speak—and they DO.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

CHAPTER XXIX.

As Bibbs came out of the new house, a Sunday trio was in course of passage upon the sidewalk. An ample young woman, placid of face; a black-clad, thin young man, whose expression was one of habitual anxiety, habitual wariness and habitual eagerness. He propelled a perambulator containing the third—and all three were newly cleaned, Sundayified, and made fit to dine with the wife's relatives.

"How'd you like for me to be that young fella, mamma?" the husband whispered. "He's one of the sons, and there ain't but two left now."

The wife stared curiously at Bibbs. "Well, I don't know," she returned. "He looks to me like he had his own troubles."

"I expect he has, like anybody else," said the young husband, "but I guess we could stand a good deal if we had his money."

"Well, maybe, if you keep on the way you been, baby. It be as well fixed as the Sheridans. You can't tell." She glanced back at Bibbs, who had turned north. "He walks kind of slow and stooped over, like."

"So much money in his pockets it makes you feel a little," said the young husband, with utter admiration.

Mary, happening to glance from a window, saw Bibbs coming, and she started, clasping her hands together in a sudden alarm. She met him at the door.

"Bibbs!" she cried. "What is the matter? I saw something was terribly wrong when I— You look—" She paused, and he came in, not lifting his eyes to hers. Always when he crossed that threshold he had come with his head up and his wistful gaze seeking hers. "Ah, poor boy!" she said, with a gesture of understanding and pity. "I know what it is!"

He followed her into the room where they always sat, and sank into a chair. "You needn't tell me," she said. "They've made you give up. Your father's won—you're going to do what he wants. You've given up."

Still without looking at her, he inclined his head in affirmation.

She gave a little cry of compassion, and came and sat near him. "Bibbs," she said, "I can be glad of one thing; though it's selfish. I can be glad you came straight to me. It's more to me than even if you'd come because you were happy." She did not speak again for a little while; then she said: "Bibbs—dear—could you tell me about it? How you want to?"

Still he did not look up, but to a voice, shaken and husky, he asked her a question so grotesque that at first she thought she had misunderstood his words.

"Mary," he said, "could you marry me?"

"What did you say, Bibbs?" she asked, quietly.

His tone and attitude did not change. "Will you marry me?"

Both her hands leaped to her cheeks—she grew red and then white. She rose slowly and moved backward from him, staring at him, at first incredulously, then with an intense perplexity more and more luminous in her wide eyes. It was like a spoken question. The room filled with strangeness in the long silence—the two were so strange to each other. At last she said:

"What made you say that?"

He did not answer.

"Bibbs, look at me!" Her voice was loud and clear. "What made you say that? Look at me!"

He could not look at her, and he could not speak.

"What was it that made you?" she said. "I want you to tell me."

She sat closer to him, her eyes ever brighter and wider with that intensity of wonder. "You've given up—to your father," she said, slowly, "and then you come to ask me—? She broke off. "Bibbs, do you want me to marry you?"

"Yes," he said, just audibly.

"No!" she cried. "You do not. Then what made you ask me? What is it that's happened?"

"Nothing."

"Wait," she said. "Let me think. It's something that happened since our walk this morning—yes, since you left me at noon. Something happened that—" She stopped abruptly, with a tremendous murmur of amazement and dawning comprehension. She remembered that Bibbs had come to the new house.

Bibbs swallowed painfully and contrived to say, "I don't want you to marry me. If—if you could."

She looked at him, and slowly shook her head. "Bibbs, do you—" Her voice was as pitifully as has—little more than a whisper. "Do you think I'm—in love with you?"

"No," he said.

Somewhere in the still air of the room there was a whispered word, it did not seem to come from Mary's parted lips, but he was aware of it. "Why?"

"I've had nothing but dreams," Bibbs said, desolately. "But they weren't like this. Sibyl said no girl could care about me." He smiled faintly, though still he did not look at Mary. "And when I first came home Edith told me Sibyl was so anxious to marry that she'd have married me. She meant it to express Sibyl's extremity, you see. But I hardly needed either of them to tell me. I hadn't thought of myself as—well, not as particularly captivating!"

Oddly enough, Mary's pallor changed to an angry flush. "Those two!" she exclaimed, sharply; and then, with thoroughgoing contempt: "Lamborn! That's like them!" She turned away.

"Mary, Mary!" He Cried Helplessly.

went to the bare little black mantel, and stood leaning upon it. Presently she asked: "When did Mrs. Boscoe Sheridan say that no girl could care about you?"

"Today," Mary drew a deep breath. "I think I'm beginning to understand—a little." She bit her lip; there was anger in good truth in her eyes and in her voice. "Answer me once more," she said. "Bibbs, do you know now why I stopped wearing my furs?"

"Yes," "I thought so! Your sister-in-law told you, didn't she?"

"I heard her say—"

"I think I know what happened. Now," Mary's breath came fast and her voice shook, but she spoke rapidly. "You heard her say more than that. You heard her say that we were bitterly poor, and on that account I tried first to marry your brother—and then—" But now she faltered, and it was only after a convulsive effort that she was able to go on. "And then—that I tried to marry—you! You heard her say that—and you believe that I don't care for you and that 'no girl could care for you—but you think I am in such an 'extremity,' as Sibyl was—that you— And so, not wanting me, and believing that I could not want you—except for my 'extremity'—you took your father's offer and then came to ask me—to marry you! What had I shown you of myself that could make you—"

Suddenly she sank down, kneeling, with her face buried in her arms upon the lap of a chair, tears overwhelming her.

"Mary, Mary!" he cried helplessly. "Oh no—you don't understand."

"I do, though," she sobbed. "I do!"

He came and stood beside her. "You kill me!" he said. "I can't make it plain. From the first of your loveliness to me, I was all self. It was all ways you that gave and I that took. I was the dependent—I did nothing but lean on you. We always talked of me, not of you. It was all about my idiotic distresses and troubles. I thought of you as a kind of wonderful being that had no mortal or human suffering except by sympathy. You seemed to lean down—out of a ivory cloud—to be kind to me. I never dreamed I could do anything for you! I never dreamed you could need anything to be done for you by anybody. And today I heard that—that you—"

"You heard that I needed to marry—someone—anybody—with money," she sobbed. "And you thought we were so desperate—you believed that I had—"

"No!" he said, quickly. "I didn't believe you'd done one kind thing for me—for that. No, no, no! I knew you'd never thought of me except generously—to give. I said I couldn't make it plain!" he cried, despairingly.

"Wait!" She lifted her head and extended her hands to him unconsciously, like a child. "Help me up, Bibbs!" Then, when she was once more upon her feet, she wiped her eyes and smiled upon him ruefully and faintly, but reassuringly, as if to tell him, in that way, that she knew he had not meant to hurt her. And that, sure, she hers, so lamentable but so faithfully friendly, misted his own eyes, for his shamefacedness lowered them no more.

"Let me tell you what you want to tell me," she said. "You can't, because you can't put it into words—they are too humiliating for me and you're too gentle to say them. Tell me, though, isn't it true? You didn't believe that I'd tried to make you fall in love with me—"

"Never! Never for an instant!" "You didn't believe I'd tried to make you want to marry me—"

"No, no, no!" "I believe it, Bibbs. You thought that I was fond of you; you know I cared for you—but you didn't think I might be—in love with you. But you thought that I might marry you with out being in love with you because you did believe I had tried to marry your brother, and—"

"Mary, I only knew—for the first time—that you—that you were—"

"Were desperately poor," she said. "You can't even say that! Bibbs, it was true: I did try to make Jim want to marry me. I did!" And she sank down into the chair, weeping bitterly again. Bibbs was agonized.

"Mary," he groaned, "I didn't know you could cry!"

"Listen," she said. "Listen till I get through—I want you to understand. We were poor, and we weren't fitted to be. We never had been, and we didn't know what to do. We'd been almost rich; there was plenty, but my father wanted to take advantage of the growth of the town; he wanted to be richer, but instead—well, just about the time your father finished building next door we found we hadn't anything. People say that, sometimes meaning that they haven't anything in comparison with other people of their own kind, but we really hadn't anything—we hadn't anything at all!"

Bibbs! And we couldn't do anything. You might wonder why I didn't try to be a stenographer—and I wonder myself why, when a friend loses it, self why, when a friend loses it, money, people always say, 'don't do it, it's tough to go and be a stenographer.' It's curious—as if a word of the kind made you into a stenographer. No, I had been raised to be either a doctor, a lawyer, or a well-to-do—a doctor, a lawyer, or a well-to-do. I chose not to marry. The money came on slowly, Bibbs, but at last it was all there—and I didn't know how to be a stenographer. I didn't know how to be anything except a well-to-do old maid or somebody's wife—and I couldn't be a well-to-do old maid. Then, Bibbs, I did what I'd been raised to know how to do. I went out to be fascinating and be married. I did it openly, at least, and with a kind of decent honesty. I told your brother I had meant to fascinate him and that I was not in love with him, but I let him think that perhaps I meant to marry him. I think I did mean to marry him. I had never cared for anybody, and I thought it might be there really wasn't anything more than a kind of excited fondness. I can't be sure, but I think that though I did mean to marry him I never should have done it, because that sort of a marriage—it's a sort of a marriage—something would have stopped me. Something did stop me: it was your sister-in-law, Sibyl. She meant no harm—but she was horrible, and she put what I was doing into such horrible words—and they were the truth—oh! I saw myself! She was proposing a miserable compact with me—and I couldn't breathe the air of the same room with her, though I'd so cheapened myself. She had a right to assume that I would. But I couldn't! I left her, and I wrote to your brother—just a quick servant. I told him just what I'd done: I asked his pardon, and I said I would marry him. I posted the letter but never got it. That was the letter that was killed. That's all, Bibbs. Now you know what I did—and you know how I felt. I pressed her clenched hand against her eyes, leaning far back, her head bowed before me."

Bibbs had watched himself long ago; his heart broke for her. "Couldn't you— Isn't there— Won't you—?" he stammered. "Mary, I'm going with father. Isn't there some way you could use the money without—without—"

She gave a choked little laugh. "You gave me something to live for," he said. "You kept me alive, I think—and I've hurt you like this!"

"Not you—oh no!"

"You could forgive me, Mary?"

"Oh, a thousand times!" Her right hand went out in a fluttering gesture, and just touched his own for an instant. "But there's nothing to forgive."

"And you can't—you can't—"

"Can't what, Bibbs?"

"You couldn't—"

"Marry you?" she said for him.

"Yes."

"No, no, no!" She sprang up, facing him, and without knowing what she did, she set her hands upon his breast, pushing him back from her a little. "I can't, I can't! Don't you see?"

"Mary—"

"No, no! And you must go now. Bibbs—I can't bear any more—please—"

"Mary—"

"Never, never, never!" she cried, in a passion of tears. "You mustn't come any more. I can't see you, dear! Never, never, never!"

Somewhat in helpless, stumbling obedience to her beseeching gesture, he got himself to the door and out of the house.

BY AUSTIN E. BEMENT, SECRETARY OF LINCOLN HIGHWAY ASSOCIATION

It must be borne in mind that the Lincoln Highway Association is an organization allying at the establishment of a continuous improved highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific and that it is not itself a constructing organization. It has never undertaken and will not undertake the actual building of sections of road, which in every instance are superintended by the regular authorities appointed and elected for that purpose. The amount which the association can procure to put upon the road by proper means, through the regular channels provided for road construction in municipalities, townships, counties and states, overbalances by thousands to one the amount of construction which could be done by the direct expenditure of the sums contributed by voluntary subscription toward the building of the highway.

To all practical purposes the Lincoln highway is now completely marked from New York to San Francisco, and the points where the marking is complete as it should be, but the work is being rapidly taken care of. At present, the local good roads organizations, boards of commerce and other civic and patriotic organizations have made it a point to complete the marking in their localities. In many places the tourists and the red, white and blue marker on every successive milepost pole for miles, as in sections of Iowa and Nebraska.

Improvement of accommodations, however, on all along the route. Hotels are enlarging, are bettering the accommodations which must be offered to the tourist, and, while metropolitan hotels and cuisine are by no means to be found on a transcontinental drive today, the improvement of conditions has been wonderful. The tremendous increase in cross country touring which 1915 revealed has a greater meaning to the country than the economic one which appeals to the local communities. Thousands of people are seeing their country for the first time in a way which brings them into intimate contact with the residents of every section. That the means of rapid, safe and individual communication between all sections of the United States means a broadening of outlook, a greater degree of understanding between our widely separated sections and a more unified nationalism is certain.

The plans for the continuance of the Lincoln Highway Association's endeavor during the present year contemplate a further extension of the work which has been done in the past. The educational work of the association will be continued. The headquarters will continue to act as a clearing house for road information and as an aid toward the establishment of other organizations for similar work. Section miles of highway will be continually established in the different states as is expedient. Every effort will be continued to be brought to bear on the authorities of the different cities, towns, ships, counties and states through which the route passes, toward the end of its rapid improvement, and incidentally the greatest possible aid will be extended to tourists undertaking to drive over the route.

"Listen," she said. "Listen till I get through—I want you to understand. We were poor, and we weren't fitted to be. We never had been, and we didn't know what to do. We'd been almost rich; there was plenty, but my father wanted to take advantage of the growth of the town; he wanted to be richer, but instead—well, just about the time your father finished building next door we found we hadn't anything. People say that, sometimes, meaning that they haven't anything in comparison with other people of their own kind, but we really hadn't anything—we hadn't anything at all! Bibbs! And we couldn't do anything. You might wonder why I didn't try to be a stenographer—and I wonder myself why, when a family loses its money, people always say the daughters ought to go and be stenographers. It's curious—as if a wife of the hand made you into a stenographer. No, I'd been raised to be either married comfortably or a well-to-do old maid. If I chose not to marry, the poverty came on slowly, Bibbs, but at last it was all there—and I didn't know how to be a stenographer. I didn't know how to be anything except a well-to-do old maid or somebody's wife—and I couldn't be a well-to-do old maid. Then, Bibbs, I did what I'd been raised to know how to do. I went out to be fascinating and be married. I did it openly, at least, and with a kind of decent honesty. I told your brother I had meant to fascinate him and that I was not in love with him, but I let him think that perhaps I meant to marry him. I think I did mean to marry him. I had never cared for anybody, and I thought it might be there really wasn't anything more than a kind of excited fondness. I can't be sure, but I think that though I did mean to marry him I never should have done it, because that sort of a marriage is—it's sacrilege—something would have stopped me. Something did stop me: it was your sister-in-law, Sibyl. She meant no harm—but she was horrible, and she put what I was doing into such horrible words—and they were the truth—oh! I saw myself! She was proposing a miserable compact with me—and I couldn't breathe the air of the same room with her, though I'd so cheapened myself she had a right to assume that I would. But I couldn't! I left her, and I wrote to your brother—just a quick scrap. I told him just what I'd done; I asked his pardon, and I said I would marry him. I posted the letter, but he never got it. That was the afternoon he was killed. That's all, Bibbs. Now you know what I did—and you know—me!" She pressed her clenched hands tightly against her eyes, leaning far forward, her head bowed before him.

Bibbs had forgotten himself long ago; his heart broke for her. "Couldn't you— Isn't there— Wouldn't you—" he stammered. "Mary, I'm going with father. Isn't there some way you could use the money without—without—"

She gave a choked little laugh. "You gave me something to live for," he said. "You kept me alive, I think—and I've hurt you like this!"

"Not you—oh no!"

"You could forgive me, Mary?"

"Oh, a thousand times!" Her right hand went out in a faltering gesture, and just touched his own for an instant. "But there's nothing to forgive."

"And you can't—you can't—" "Can't what, Bibbs?"

"You couldn't—" "Marry you?" she said for him.

"Yes," "No, no, no!" She sprang up, facing him, and, without knowing what she did, she set her hands upon his breast, pushing him back from her a little. "I can't, I can't! Don't you see?"

"Mary—" "No, no! And you must go now. Bibbs, I can't bear any more—please—"

"Mary—" "Never, never, never!" she cried, in a passion of tears. "You mustn't come any more. I can't see you, dear! Never, never, never!"

Somehow, in helpless, stumbling obedience to her beseeching gesture, he got himself to the door and out of the house.

PROGRESS OF THE LINCOLN HIGHWAY

More Than $2,200,000 Has Been Already Expended.

WHOLE ROUTE IS MARKED.

It Has Been a Tremendous Gain To People And For the First Time.

BY AUSTIN E. BEMENT, Secretary of Lincoln Highway Association.

It must be borne in mind that the Lincoln Highway Association is an organization aiming at the establishment of a continuous improved highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific and that it is not itself a constructing organization. It has never undertaken and will not undertake the actual building of sections of road, which in every instance are superintended by the regular authorities appointed and elected for that purpose. The amount which the association can procure to be spent upon the road by proper means, through the regular channels provided for road construction in municipalities, townships, counties and states, overbalances by thousands to one the amount of construction which could be done by the direct expenditure of the sums contributed by voluntary subscription toward the building of the highway.

To all practical purposes the Lincoln highway is now completely marked from New York to San Francisco. There are points where the marking is not as complete as it should be, but this is being rapidly taken care of. Automobile clubs, local good roads organizations, boards of commerce and other civic and patriotic organizations have made it a point to complete the marking in their localities. In many places the tourist, and the red, white and blue marker, or every successive telegraph pole for miles, as in sections of Iowa and Nebraska.

Improvement of accommodations is going on all along the route. Hotels are enlarging, are bettering the accommodations which must be offered to the tourist, and, while metropolitan hotels and cuisine can by no means be found on a transcontinental drive today, the improvement of conditions has been wonderful. The tremendous increase in cross country touring which 1915 revealed has a greater meaning to the country than the economic one which appeals to the local communities. Thousands of people are seeing their country for the first time in a way which brings them into intimate contact with the residents of every section. That the means of rapid, safe and individual communication between all sections of the United States means a broadening of outlook, a greater degree of understanding between our widely separated sections and a more unified nationalism is certain.

The plans for the continuance of the Lincoln Highway Association's endeavor during the present year contemplate a further extension of the work which has been done in the past. The educational work of the association will be continued. The headquarters will continue to act as a clearing house for road information and as an aid toward the establishment of other organizations for similar work. Soiling miles of highway will be continually established in the different states as is expedient. Every effort will be continued to be brought to bear on the authorities of the different cities, towns, ships, counties and states through which the route passes, toward the end of its rapid improvement, and incidentally the greatest possible aid will be extended to tourists undertaking to drive over the route.

KAISER SEEKING TO AVERT BREAK

Von Bernstorff Makes Suggestions For Settlement.

BERLIN IS OPTIMISTIC

The German Reply to the Submarine Note May Reach Washington on Saturday.

Berlin, April 27.—It is learned that developments are impending which demonstrate unmistakably the desire of Emperor William to follow a course which will lead Germany and the United States out of the present crisis. The situation is viewed more optimistically here.

The German answer to the American note on submarine warfare may not be expected before the end of the present week. It may be presented on Saturday.

Dr. von Bethmann-Holweg, the imperial chancellor, and Admiral von Holtzendorff, chief of the naval general staff, departed for great headquarters on the evening train to consult with Emperor William in regard to the reply.

Prior to his departure, the chancellor had another long conference with the American ambassador, Mr. Gerard.

The public and the press continue to view the situation gravely, but calmly and for the greater part with a desire that a way out of the controversy may be found.

The Wolf bureau has circulated an appeal from the German University League of America to the rector of Berlin University for a dispassionate consideration of the American position.

The widely differing Vossische Zeitung and Tages Zeitung seem to find reason for the belief that an understanding between Germany and the United States will be arrived at. Under the heading, "Possibilities of an Understanding," the Vossische Zeitung reviews the guarantees which Germany gave to the United States in the case of the ship William P. Frye and which, it extended to all submarine warfare, the paper believes would satisfy America.

Bernstorff Makes Suggestions.

Washington, April 27.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, in response to a request from the Berlin foreign office, has made suggestions for a course in the submarine crisis which he believes will avert a break with the United States.

The ambassador also sent by wire less a message to his government asking that no action be taken until his cable message had been received. The request from the foreign office for the ambassador's suggestions contained the statement that Germany was prepared to go to great lengths to prevent a rupture.

The fact that there has been such an exchange of despatches between the embassy and Berlin was confirmed, but nothing in detail was disclosed as to their contents.

It is considered probable that Dr. von Bethmann-Holweg, the imperial chancellor took with him when he left Berlin last night to visit the emperor at grand headquarters, despatches containing the recommendations of the Ambassador.

Secretary of State Lansing announced that he had received a report from James W. Gerard, American ambassador at Berlin, of his conference with the imperial chancellor and that it was brief.

"I can say nothing about it," was Mr. Lansing's only comment.

AMERICANS' EXIT BLOCKED

Many Leaving Germany Reported Held Up at Constance.

Geneva, April 27.—Americans attempting to leave Germany by way of Switzerland are encountering difficulties.

Many of them are held up at Constance, the Baden frontier having been closed since Monday.

An exodus of Americans from Germany had already begun. A number of them already have arrived at Basle. They are convinced that a rupture between Germany and the United States is inevitable.

Foreigners Cannot Leave Germany.

Paris, April 27.—The German-Swiss frontier has been closed since Monday afternoon, even to mails, says a despatch to the Matin from Bern. Foreigners now in Germany have been informed that none will be allowed to leave the country before twenty days have elapsed, the despatch adds.

Early & Practical Home Dress Making Lessons

Prepared Especially For This Newspaper by Pictorial Review

Typifying the smartest of children's modes is this frock in Scotch gingham and French linen, with blouse waist and side plaited skirt.

The plaid gingham and the plain linen is French, a friendly combination. The blouse is most effective in white, and requires about 2 yards of material to make for a girl of average size. The skirt requires about the same amount of gingham. It is attached to a sleeveless underbody which may have a round, pointed or square neck. It is well to begin the construction of the dress with the underbody. First face the front from neck edge to 1 1/2 inches below the lower small "o" perforations, then face the back from neck to edge to about 1 1/2 inches below. Plait lower edge of front, placing "T" on small "o" perforations.

PEACE WIRES SPUR ANTI-WAR SENATORS

Leaders Fear It Will Be Difficult to Keep Them Quiet.

Washington, April 27.—The avalanche of telegrams protesting against any action likely to bring about a war with Germany, keep piling higher and higher upon congress and representatives from all parts of the country indicated the flood of messages would not reach the crest for several days.

It is estimated that more than 50,000 telegrams have come in so far. More are on file waiting to be sent from Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and other cities.

Senators and representatives, particularly from the middle west states, had extra forces of clerks at work sorting the messages, and the telegraph companies brought in extra operators from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

Some members of congress were suggesting an investigation to disclose who furnished the prepared forms of telegrams and paid thousands of dollars for their delivery.

One senator received a printed sheet upon which were printed the various forms of messages being received. At the top was printed a note urging the recipient of the circular to pick out any one or all of the form messages and telegraph them to members of congress.

As a result of the deluge of messages Democratic leaders began to doubt whether they could be longer able to keep the peace advocates in the senate quiet until the German reply to the last submarine note has been received.

Now, close back seam of skirt from large "O" perforation to lower edge; finish edges above for an opening. Turn a hem at lower edge on small "o" perforations. Form plaits, crossing on slot perforations bring folded edge near center-back to center and bring remaining folded edges to center, responding small "p" perforations; press plaits. Sew to lower edge of underbody, center-fronts and center-backs even.

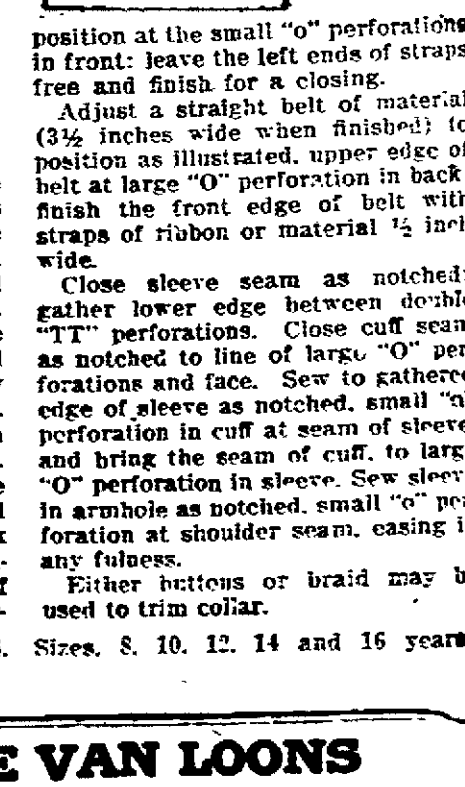

Next, gather the shoulder edge of the blouse between double "T" perforations, and make 3 rows of gathers below, 1/2 inch apart. Close under-arm and shoulder seams as notched. Face large collar, sew to neck edge, notches and center-backs even. Stitch straight straps of material or ribbon (1 1/2 inch wide) to position at the small "o" perforations in front; leave the left ends of straps free and finish for a closing.

Adjust a straight belt of material (3/4 inches wide when finished) to position as illustrated, upper edge of belt at large "O" perforation in back; finish the front edge of belt with straps of ribbon or material 1/2 inch wide.

SOUR SPINACH.—Clean and wash spinach thoroughly, rejecting the coarse leaves and stalks, put to cook in a covered kettle with no water except that which has clung to its leaves in the washing. Steam half a peck over not much fire for five or six minutes, then with a wooden spoon turn and break the almost melted spinach and dry out any water. To a half peck of spinach add the juice of a lemon after adding butter generously, or in its place a boiled down meat stock. Eat hot, when it will seem not unlike sorrel greens, or mold and serve cold as a salad with a garnish of boiled egg or beets or both.

"Pursley" Greens.—Purslane, which soon comes up in a freshly hoed garden and which might be profitably cultivated for greens since it is a great grower, is mildly and deliciously acid of itself. The Dutch use it in quantities and can it, so that we can sometimes buy it thus. Cook as you do spinach.

Cucumber Cutlets.—Choose short bulk cucumbers and peel carefully, cutting off ends and dividing whole into about three equal parts. Roll for about five minutes, but not enough so that the seeds start to come out. Drain and cool a little, then dip in slightly beaten egg yolk and then in cracker crumbs and fry gently in butter, turning once. A piquant sauce may be served with these or lemon juice, but nothing is really needed to make them palatable. Cucumbers may be stewed in a little water and served with butter and a little vinegar and taste good.

Boiled Globe Artichokes.—Wash artichokes and remove outer woody leaves. Cut off a fourth or perhaps a third of the top (this depends upon the condition, since it will not be necessary to cut a perfectly fresh one unless the leaves have a thorn, throw into lightly salted water in which there is the juice of a lemon and boil from fifteen to twenty minutes. When the leaves come off the bottom readily it is cooked enough. Drain and serve on a plate with a tablespoonful of hollandaise sauce, dipping the inner tip of the leaf in the sauce. Tender leaves may be eaten entire and furnish excellent bulk, but usually the fleshy inside is drawn off with the teeth, having previously been seasoned with the sauce. They may be eaten cold in the same way with either a mayonnaise or a French dressing.

YOU CAN VOTE FOR PRESIDENT WILSON
ON MAY 16TH.

For the first time in the history of Pennsylvania, on May 16th, the voters will have an opportunity for casting their ballot directly for the man that they prefer for President.

Do you fully realize what President Wilson has done for our country; how in these exceedingly trying times he has kept us out of war and at peace; how the youth of the country are at home and not in foreign lands to there endure the hardships of war and the possibility of losing their lives; how homes have been kept from desolation, your home possibly; wives from being made widows and children from being made orphans?

And on this same day remember that A. R. Brodbeck, who is a candidate for Congress, has always stood by President Wilson; he stands for him now and if nominated and elected will stand for and with him again. Recognize what Mr. Brodbeck has done not only in standing with the President, but in standing for you. Give him your support; give him your vote. Mr. Brodbeck has clearly demonstrated while a member of Congress that he not only had the interest of the country at heart, but the interest of this Congressional District.

Make up your mind now; talk to your friends: don't allow anything to keep you from going to the Primary Election and voting.

The Difficult Time.

KAISER SEEKING TO AVERT BREAK

Von Bernstorff Makes Suggestions For Settlement.

BERLIN IS OPTIMISTIC

The German Reply to the Submarine Note May Reach Washington on Saturday.

Berlin, April 27.—It is learned that developments are impending which demonstrate unmistakably the desire of Emperor William to follow a course which will lead Germany and the United States out of the present crisis. The situation is viewed more optimistically here.

The German answer to the American note on submarine warfare may not be expected before the end of the present week. It may be presented on Saturday.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, and Admiral von Holtzendorff, chief of the naval general staff, departed for great headquarters on the evening train to consult with Emperor William in regard to the reply.

Prior to his departure, the chancellor had another long conference with the American ambassador, Mr. Gerard.

The public and the press continue to view the situation gravely, but calmly and for the greater part with a desire that a way out of the controversy may be found.

The Wolf bureau has circulated an appeal from the German University League of America to the rector of Berlin University for a dispassionate consideration of the American position.

The widely differing Vossische Zeitung and Tages Zeitung seem to find reason for the belief that an understanding between Germany and the United States will be arrived at. Under the heading, "Possibilities of an Understanding," the Vossische Zeitung reviews the guarantees which Germany gave to the United States in the case of the ship William P. Fry, and which, if extended to all submarine warfare, the paper believes would satisfy America.

Bernstorff Makes Suggestions.

Washington, April 27.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, in response to a request from the Berlin foreign office, has made suggestions for a course in the submarine crisis which he believes will avert a break with the United States.

The ambassador also sent by wire less a message to his government asking that no action be taken until his cable message had been received. The request from the foreign office for the ambassador's suggestions contained the statement that Germany was prepared to go to great lengths to prevent a rupture.

The fact that there has been such an exchange of despatches between the embassy and Berlin was confirmed, but nothing in detail was disclosed as to their contents.

It is considered probable that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, took with him when he left Berlin last night to visit the emperor at grand headquarters, despatches containing the recommendations of the Ambassador.

Secretary of State Lansing announced that he had received a report from James W. Gerard, American ambassador at Berlin, of his conference with the imperial chancellor and that it was brief.

"I can say nothing about it," was Mr. Lansing's only comment.

AMERICANS' EXIT BLOCKED

Many Leaving Germany Reported Held Up at Constance.

Geneva, April 27.—Americans attempting to leave Germany by way of Switzerland are encountering difficulties.

Many of them are held up at Constance, the Baden frontier having been closed since Monday.

An exodus of Americans from Germany had already begun. A number of them already have arrived at Basel. They are convinced that a rupture between Germany and the United States is inevitable.

Foreigners Cannot Leave Germany.

Paris, April 27.—The German-Swiss frontier has been closed since Monday afternoon, even to mails, says a despatch to the Matin from Bern. Foreigners now in Germany have been informed that none will be allowed to leave the country before twenty days have elapsed, the despatch adds.

The Pope Frowns on Riots.

London, April 27.—Pope Benedict has expressed his disapproval of the political disturbances in southern Ireland, and has called to the archbishop of Dublin for particulars, says a wire less despatch. In his message the pontiff advised the Irish Catholics to remain passive.

300 Cases of Measles in Lancaster.

Lancaster, Pa., April 27.—Measles are epidemic to such an extent here that two of the public schools have been closed, and it is feared that others must be closed. The health authorities report more than three hundred cases existing.

SPINACH.—Clean and wash spinach thoroughly, rejecting the coarse leaves and stalks, put to cook in a covered kettle with no water except that which has clung to its leaves in the washing. Steam half a peck over not much fire for five or six minutes, then with a wooden spoon turn and break the almost melted spinach and dry out any water. To a half peck of spinach add the juice of a lemon after adding butter generous sauce, dipping the inner tip of the leaf in the sauce. Tender leaves may be eaten entire and furnish excellent bulk, but usually the fleshy inside is drawn off with the teeth, having previously been seasoned with the sauce. They may be eaten cold in the same way with other a mayonnaise or a French dressing.

"Pusley" Greens.—Ursula, which soon comes up in a freshly hood garden and which might be profitably cultivated for greens since it is a great grower, is mildly and deliciously acid of itself. The Dutch use it in quantities and can it, so that we can sometimes buy it thus. Cook as you do spinach.

Cucumber Cutlets.—Choose short bulky cucumbers and peel carefully, cutting off ends and dividing whole into about three equal parts. Boil for about five minutes, but not enough so that the seeds start to come out. Drain and cool a little, then dip in slightly beaten egg yolk and then in cracker crumbs and fry gently in butter, turning once. A piquant sauce may be served with these or lemon juice, but nothing is really needed to make them palatable. Cucumbers may be stewed in a little water and served with butter and a little vinegar and taste good.

Boiled Globe Artichokes.—Wash artichokes and remove outer woody leaves. Cut off a fourth or perhaps a third of the top (this depends upon the condition, since it will not be necessary to cut a perfectly fresh one unless the leaves have a thorn, throw into lightly salted water in which there is the juice of a lemon and boil from fifteen to twenty minutes. When the leaves come off the bottom readily it is cooked enough. Drain and serve on a plate with a tablespoonful of hollandaise sauce, dipping the inner tip of the leaf in the sauce. Tender leaves may be eaten entire and furnish excellent bulk, but usually the fleshy inside is drawn off with the teeth, having previously been seasoned with the sauce. They may be eaten cold in the same way with other a mayonnaise or a French dressing.

YOU CAN VOTE FOR PRESIDENT WILSON ON MAY 16TH.

For the first time in the history of Pennsylvania, on May 16th, the voters will have an opportunity for casting their ballot directly for the man that they prefer for President.

Do you fully realize what President Wilson has done for our country; how in these exceedingly trying times he has kept us out of war and at peace; how the youth of the country are at home and not in foreign lands to there endure the hardships of war and the possibility of losing their lives; how homes have been kept from desolation, your home possibly; wives from being made widows and children from being made orphans?

Show your appreciation of what the President has done not only for the country, but for you, and go to the polls on May 16th and register your vote of approval of his course by voting for him, and by doing this you will at the same time be according our President a vote of confidence that will be highly appreciated by him.

And on this same day remember that A. R. Brodbeck, who is a candidate for Congress, has always stood by President Wilson; he stands for him now and if nominated and elected will stand for and with him again. Recognize what Mr. Brodbeck has done not only in standing with the President, but in standing for you. Give him your support; give him your vote. Mr. Brodbeck has clearly demonstrated while a member of Congress that he not only had the interest of the country at heart, but the interest of this Congressional District.

Make up your mind now; talk to your friends; don't allow anything to keep you from going to the Primary Election and voting.

G. W. Weaver & SonBaby Love

By ETHEL HOLMES

That love which springs up between two young persons of opposite sex is like the child that comes to them after marriage. It has its babyhood, its childhood and its youth. As a baby is a delicate little thing, liable to be snuffed out by the slightest adverse happening, so is the beginning of love. Young love has its measles, its whooping cough and its colic.

Charlie Edwards was twenty-one and Rosa Lee eighteen when they became engaged. There was a cyclone of ecstasy for twenty-four hours; then a revulsion. Charlie wondered if he hadn't done something dreadful. He wanted to go right off and put himself back where he was before; but, being a man of honor and not seeing how he could honorably do so, he hesitated. Besides, he shrank from going back on the wild enthusiasm of the initial transports and confessing that he was so unstable. The truth is he was staggered by the responsibilities he had assumed.

Forty-eight hours' absence from his love was quite enough to cause him to forget the responsibilities and to long for another kiss. It was 5 o'clock in the afternoon when this new phase came over him, and he resolved to go to see her after dinner. That would be 8 o'clock. How would he get through those intervening three hours?

At half past 7 he could stand it no longer and started for her home. Fortunately it required fifteen minutes to get there. He saw a figure at the front window and on entering the drawing room saw the girl sitting in the gloaming. He advanced to embrace her. She waved him back.

"I suppose it is all a mistake," she said.

"All a mistake?" His heart sank within him.

"Yes. It is impossible that you can love me and remain away from me all these long days."

"All these long days? Why, we have been engaged only since the night before last."

"I sat here in this window waiting for you till 9 o'clock, then went to bed and cried all night."

"Poor, dear little girl," he said, winding his arms about her and snuggling her face—or, rather, her lips—against his.

The first spasm of baby love had passed and was succeeded by six hours of rapture.

He started to go at 2 a.m., got to the drawing room door at 2:15, and the last kiss was at 2:30 in the vestibule.

Baby love didn't have a spasm, or anything else for another two days. Meanwhile Charlie was getting down to engaged life quite rapidly. A man moves from one position to another, a woman, in certain respects, is apt to remain where she finds herself. Baby love had all the children's ills, but with every one Charlie gained by experience and came to consider them a matter of course. Three months after his engagement he called on his fiancée one evening to find symptoms that shortly before would have been alarming.

"It's perfectly evident," said Rosa, withdrawing from him as he advanced to give the usual lovers' salute, "that this cannot go on any longer."

"What can't go on any longer?"

"Why, your indifference to me when we are in other company."

"What have I done now?"

"Do you think that your treatment of me at Mrs. Randall's garden party was such as I have a right to expect?"

"What did I do?"

"You know very well what you did. When I asked you to get me an ice, instead of doing so at once you continued your conversation with Mrs. Fitz Gerald, paying no attention to me whatever."

"Mrs. Fitz Gerald was telling me an incident that happened to her. I could not break away from her in the middle of her story, could I?"

"You didn't wish to break away from her. You were listening with rapt attention."

"Surely you're not!"

"Jealous? Oh, dear, no. I wouldn't think of being jealous of an old woman like that. She's twenty-eight if she's a day."

For the first time since his engagement woman's unreasonableness began to rub the wrong way. His brow lowered.

"You say that things can't go on any longer in this way. Do you mean that our engagement must be broken?"

"Unless I can be assured that you are not to be caught by any married woman who chooses to throw a spell over you."

"I thought you said you were not jealous of Mrs. Fitz Gerald."

"I'm not. Mrs. Fitz Gerald is not the only designing woman there is in the world."

"What do you wish me to do?"

This was a poser. Rosa, not having any reply to make, was silent. She had had her say and was ready to make it up. She stood looking down at the floor, and as there was no antagonism in her expression Charlie went to her and took her in his arms.

Charlie hoped that the end of these paroxysms would come with marriage. They did not end with the wedding day nor with the honeymoon. Not till a real baby came was there a perceptible change. Then Charlie suddenly discovered that his wife had found another love which took the edge of the first. A genuine rival had displaced him.

of American Soldiers' Leave's
Vivid Impression on Mexicans—Some
Are Friendly and Some Are Sullen.

As troop column succeeds troop column, horse, foot and guns, marching southward over the primitive trails of Chihuahua uplands and through the rambling towns and villages, it would appear as if the entire regular establishment of the United States land forces were being concentrated to compass Francisco Villa and his brig and following, says a correspondent.

To the white troops and the black that have succeeded one another in the several phases of the man hunt has been added a force of Apache Indian scouts. These red men arrived at field headquarters the other day attired as the white and the black, in the regulation olive drab of the United States army, uniform in garb as in purpose with the others of Uncle Sam's fighting men.

The Apaches appear to be intent upon performing their particular function in the broadly laid military scheme of General Pershing. Therein they differ not at all from the other units of the expeditionary force detailed to exact retribution for the Culligan atrocity.

As the most mobile of the troops are being thrust into the mountain gaps in every direction through which the fugitive fox of the Sierras might elude his pursuers all manner of rumors are flying over the face of the land.

Troops Impress Natives.
The strength and obvious efficiency of the American troops have left a profound impression upon the Mexicans. Not all of the Mexicans of northern Chihuahua are inclined to brand Villa for what he is, for many regard him with superstitious fear and awe. They know him for what he was.

Others, and these are many, who have suffered grievously in their peaceful pursuits by his indiscriminate forays look with relief, if not with sympathy, upon the advent of the foreign troops upon their soil. There might have been anxiety in the beginning, for the United States border is nearly 300 miles away, and these peacefully inclined farmers are not travel far and know but vaguely of the nation to the northward. With the scrupulous observance of all the rights of the inhabitants of the territory over which our troops are operating and the unaccustomed sensation of security from all molestation accompanying the occupation of this section by the expeditionary forces, the Mexican farmers are daily growing more friendly.

Anti-American Propaganda.

That Villa and his lieutenants are carrying forward a carefully prepared propaganda, with the purpose of effecting a union of several factions to war upon the United States, is indicated by the rumors that are wafted abroad in guarded tones by a section of the population. There can be no effective resistance offered, however, so long as the Mexican government remains friendly, for the expedition, besides disintegrating at San Geronimo and Ojo Caliente the military organization of Villa, has been of immense educational value. All along the direct line of advance, at Casas Grandes, Gallena, El Valle, Las Cruces, Namiquipa and the lesser towns and villages, it was noted that the Mexicans regarded our troops with great respect. The attitude of these communities is indicative of the impressions left because of the scrupulous regard by the commanding general of the expedition for the national sensibilities of the people. At the same time the caliber of the troops—the superb condition of men, mounts and accoutrements—was not without its effect in stimulating the general feeling of amity.

Like the mathematical calculation of gasoline and oil consumption by the indispensable truck trains is the measure of the troop and battery horses' endurance in the field. Infinite care is exercised at all times so that no trooper or fieldpiece may become ineffective without his mount and without a full complement of horses in a gun team the cavalryman and the artillery lose their worth in a field force. So also are the men being scrutinized by the surgeons and the food supply maintained at the requisite standard of quantity and quality in nutriment. So far from the supply base and with no other means than truck and wagon train the maintenance of these supplies represents no inconsiderable phase of the operations.

Throughout the march, although they touched no water for twenty-five miles one day, not a murmur of discontent from any soldier because of hardships endured was heard and not a horse faltered in spite of the terrific strain. On the mountain summits, where the trail led sometimes, the lashed air currents swept with such force on occasion as if to drive the unformed horsemen from their precarious perch. Then only a few hours would intervene ere the mounts, with their riders, were picking their way on again.

By ETHEL HOLMES

That love which springs up between two young persons of opposite sex is like the child that comes to them after marriage. It has its babyhood, its childhood and its youth. As a baby is a delicate little thing, liable to be snuffed out by the slightest adverse happening, so is the beginning of love. Young love has its measles, its whooping cough and its colic.

Charlie Edmonds was twenty-one and Rosa Lee eighteen when they became engaged. There was a cyclone of ecstasy for twenty-four hours, then a revulsion. Charlie wondered if he hadn't done something dreadful. He wanted to go right off and put himself back where he was before; but, being a man of honor and not seeing how he could honorably do so, he hesitated. Besides, he shrank from going back on the wild enthusiasm of the initial transports and confessing that he was so unstable. The truth is he was staggered by the responsibility he had assumed.

Forty-eight hours' absence from his love was quite enough to cause him to forget the responsibilities and to long for another kiss. It was 5 o'clock in the afternoon when this new phase came over him, and he resolved to go to see her after dinner. That would be 8 o'clock. How would he get through those intervening three hours?

At half past 7 he could stand it no longer and started for her home. Fortunately it required fifteen minutes to get there. He saw a figure at the front window and on entering the drawing room saw the girl sitting in the gloaming. He advanced to embrace her. She waved him back.

"I suppose it is all a mistake," she said.

"All a mistake?" His heart sank within him.

"Yes. It is impossible that you can love me and remain away from me all these long days."

"All these long days? Why, we have been engaged only since the night before last."

"I sat here in this window waiting for you till 9 o'clock, then went to bed and cried all night."

"Poor, dear little girl," he said, winding his arms about her and snuggling her face—or, rather, her lips—against his.

The first spasm of baby love had passed and was succeeded by six hours of rapture.

He started to go at 2 a. m., got to the drawing room door at 2:15, and the last kiss was at 2:30 in the vestibule.

Baby love didn't have a spasm or anything else for another two days. Meanwhile Charlie was getting down to engaged life quite rapidly. A man moves from one position to another; a woman, in certain respects, is apt to remain where she finds herself. Baby love had all the children's life, but with every one Charlie gained by experience and came to consider them a matter of course. Three months after his engagement he called on his fiancée one evening to find symptoms that shortly before would have been alarming.

"It's perfectly evident," said Rosa withdrawing from him as he advanced to give the usual lovers' salute, "that this cannot go on any longer."

"What can't go on any longer?"

"Why, your indifference to me when we are in other company."

"What have I done now?"

"Do you think that your treatment of me at Mrs. Randall's garden party was such as I have a right to expect?"

"What did I do?"

"You know very well what you did. When I asked you to get me an ice, instead of doing so at once you continued your conversation with Mrs. Fitz Gerald, paying no attention to me what ever."

"Mrs. Fitz Gerald was telling me an incident that happened to her. I could not break away from her in the middle of her story, could I?"

"You didn't wish to break away from her. You were listening with rapt attention."

"Surely you're not!"

"Jealous? Oh, dear, no. I wouldn't think of being jealous of an old woman like that. She's twenty-eight if she's a day."

For the first time since his engagement woman's unreasonableness began to rub the wrong way. His brow lowered.

"You say that things can't go on any longer in this way. Do you mean that our engagement must be broken?"

"Unless I can be assured that you are not to be caught by any married woman who chooses to throw a spell over you."

"I thought you said you were not jealous of Mrs. Fitz Gerald."

"I'm not. Mrs. Fitz Gerald is not the only designing woman there is in the world."

"What do you wish me to do?"

This was a poser. Rosa, not having any reply to make, was silent. She had had her say and was ready to make it up. She stood looking down at the floor, and as there was no antagonism in her expression Charlie went to her and took her in his arms.

Charlie hoped that the end of these paroxysms would come with marriage. They did not end with the wedding day nor with the honeymoon. Not till a real baby came was there a perceptible change. Then Charlie suddenly discovered that his wife had found another love which took the edge off the first. A genuine rival had displaced him.

TROOPS IN MEXICO
FACE HARDSHIPSNot a Murmur of Discontent
Is Heard, However.INDIAN SCOUTS AT WORK.

Ready to Search All the Mountains For Some Trace of the Outlaws—Efficiency of American Soldiers Leaves Vivid Impression on Mexicans—Some Are Friendly and Some Are Sullen.

As troop column succeeds troop column, horse, foot and guns, marching southward over the primitive trails of Chihuahua uplands and through the rambling towns and villages, it would appear as if the entire regular establishment of the United States land forces were being concentrated to encompass Francisco Villa and his brig and following, says a correspondent.

To the white troops and the black that have succeeded one another in the several phases of the man hunt has been added a force of Apache Indian scouts. These red men arrived at field headquarters the other day attired as the white and the black, in the regulation olive drab of the United States army, uniform in garb as in purpose with the others of Uncle Sam's fighting men.

The Apaches appear to be intent upon performing their particular function in the broadly laid military scheme of General Pershing. Therein they differ not at all from the other units of the expeditionary force detailed to exact retribution for the Columbus trophy.

As the most mobile of the troops are being thrust into the mountain gaps in every direction through which the fugitive fox of the Sierras might elude his pursuers all manner of rumors are flying over the face of the land.

Troops Impress Natives.

The strength and obvious efficiency of the American troops have left a profound impression upon the Mexicans. Not all of the Mexicans of northern Chihuahua are inclined to brand Villa for what he is, for many regard him with superstitious fear and awe. They know him for what he was.

Others, and these are many, who have suffered grievously in their peaceful pursuits by his indiscriminate forays look with relief, if not with sympathy, upon the advent of the foreign troops upon their soil. There might have been anxiety in the beginning, for the United States border is nearly 300 miles away, and these peacefully inclined farmers never travel far and know but vaguely of the nation to the northward. With the scrupulous observance of all the rights of the inhabitants of the territory over which our troops are operating and the unaccustomed sensation of security from all molestation accompanying the occupation of this section by the expeditionary forces, the Mexican farmers are daily growing more friendly.

Anti-American Propaganda.

That Villa and his lieutenants are carrying forward a carefully prepared propaganda, with the purpose of effecting a union of several factions to war upon the United States, is indicated by the rumors that are wafted abroad in guarded tones by a section of the population. There can be no effective resistance offered, however, so long as the Mexican government remains friendly, for the expedition, besides disintegrating at San Geronimo and Ojo Caliente the military organization of Villa, has been of immense educational value. All along the direct line of advance, at Casas Grandes, Galeana, El Valle, Las Cruces, Namiagua and the lesser towns and villages, it was noted that the Mexicans regarded our troops with great respect. The attitude of these communities is indicative of the impressions left because of the scrupulous regard for the commanding general of the expedition for the national sensibilities of the people. At the same time the caliber of the troops—the superb condition of men, mounts and accoutrements—was not without its effect in stimulating the general feeling of amity.

Like the mathematical calculation of gasoline and oil consumption by the indispensable truck trains is the measure of the troop and battery horses' endurance in the field. Infinite care is exercised at all times so that no trooper or fieldpiece may become ineffective, far without his mount and without a full complement of horses in a gun team the cavalryman and the artillery lose their worth in a field force. So also are the men being scrutinized by the surgeons and the food supply maintained at the requisite standard of quantity and quality in nutriment. So far from the supply base and with no other means than truck and wagon train, the maintenance of these supplies represents no inconsiderable phase of the operations.

Throughout the march, although they touched no water for twenty-five miles one day, not a murmur of discontent from any soldier because of hardships endured was heard and not a horse faltered in spite of the terrible strain. On the mountain summits, where the trail led sometimes, the rarefied air currents swept with such force on occasion as if to drive the unformed horsemen from their precarious perch. Then only a few hours would intervene ere the mounts, with their riders, were picking their way on again.

Rubbing it in.

"The audacity of this hundred!"

"How now?"

"After reducing my garments to shreds she tries to charge me by the piece."—Louisville Courier-Journal
